DRUG VICTIMS ATTEMPT SUICIDE

MAY USE 'OUTLAW' IN GAME

PHILADELPHIA, May 1.—Benny Kauff, who jumped from the Brookfeds, is here today with the Giants, who are scheduled to meet the Phillies. It is reported McGraw may defy President Tener's ban on Kauff and try to use him in today's game.

Tener has instructed all his umpires to give the Giants tire small end of a 9 to 0 score any time McGraw refuses to keep Kauff out of the lineup. Philadelphia fans, remembering how one of last season's games between the Giants and Phillies resulted practically in a riot, look for more excitement at the field today.

NEW YORK, May 1.—All the members of the Federal League magnate clan are scheduled to confer today and decide what steps are to be taken regarding the desertion of Benny Kauff from the Brooklyn Federal League team. President Gilmore has issued a call for the special

DRUG VICTIM PRISONER TAKES HIS OWN LIFE

An epidemic of suicide and attempted spicide among "dope fiends" at Deer Island and Charles Street Jail, who have been made crazy by lack of their habitual drug, became known today.

Albert Urquhart of Medicine Hat, Alberta, Canada, serving a four months 'sentence at Deer Island for sellling morphine, committed suicide by diving from a fourth-floor landing to the concrete floor, Thursday morning. The man's skull was shattered.

Joseph Marks, charged in the city court with having morphine in his possession and committed to Charles Street Jail, jumped or dived over a third-floor railing to the flagging below yesterday morning and is now in a serious condition in the Massachusetts General Hospital.

Today another prisoner at Charles Street Jail, occupying one of the so-called "dope fiend" cells, attempted to hang himself when his cell-mate called a guard. The would-be suicide is now in a special cell, under constant observation.

The suicide of Urquhart at Deer Island holds the greatest interest in the three cases, not only on account of the tragedy itself but also on account of the statement by Penal Institutions Commissioner David H. Shaw that he did not know anything of the suicide until more than forty-two hours had passed.

Urquhart killed himself at 7:20 Thursday morning. Commissioner Shaw insisted today that he did not know of the case until he was called on the telephone at 1:30 this morning

Seismographs Record Severe Earthquake

WASHINGTON, May 1.—An unusually severe earthquake lasting two hours today was recorded on the seismograph at Georgetown University here.

The tremors began at 12:22 a. m., reached their height at 12:45 and continued until after 2 a. m., according to Father Tondorf, in charge of the university observatory.

The quake was at an estimated distance of 5,586 miles, but Father Tondorf was unable to determine in what direction. He said that if it was on land it was one of the most destructive in many years.

Rev. Father Odenbach of St. Ignatius Seminary at Cleveland reported today that the seismograph there recorded a series of heavy arthquake tremors this morning, starting at 1:12 a. m. The maximum was reached at 1:46 to 1:48 and the final shocks were recorded at 2:33 a. m. The distance was estimated at 6,000 miles.

Earthquake shocks, believed by scientists to have occurred in Japan, were recorded at the Miles Observatory in London, cable dispatches say. They were the most severe registered by that seismograph in seven years.

MOTHER TELLS OF FINDING COE

Mrs. Henry Clarke Coe of New York, mother of Henry Clarke Coe, Jr., of Boston, the long missing Standard Oil employe, who has been located at Fairbanks, Alaska, told today how her son had been found. Her story of the long search is given in a dispatch from New York.

The mother said the newspapers of the country had given as much aid in the hunt for her son as had the detectives who discovered him. She said he was employed as a clerk in a store at Fairbanks, and added:

"We are only afraid that his mind is permanently deranged, but our fears of that are offset by our joy at finding him."

"It has been a long and terrible period of suspense both for us and for Harry's wife, who is in Boston," she said. "We can hardly believe it now, even though we know that Harry is really alive and safe. I feel thankful to every one for helping us, but most of all we are thankful to the newspapers of the country. It was the newspapers that helped us to get the first definite clew after we had almost abandoned the search as hopeless.

Bonds Ordered Returned to Mrs. Russell

Judge Braley of the Supreme Court has ordered F. H. C. Reynolds, special administrator of the estate of George A. Ward of Newton, to deliver forthwith to Mrs. Emma F. Russell of Boston eight $1,000 bonds of the Republic of Cuba, given to her by Ward as a reward for her care of him during his last illness.

Ward boarded with Mrs. Russell during the last two years of his life, and during his illness of a year she cared for him. He gave her the bonds, but at his suggestion they were left in his safe deposit vault. She sued Administrator Reynolds to recover them.

Torpedo Russian Coal Steamer

By International News Service.

LONDON, May 1.—The Russian steamer Svorono has been torpedoed by the German submarine U-22, off the coast of County Kerry, southwestern Ireland, according to a message received here today.

The Svorono was bound for Archangel, Russia's northern port, from Fort Talbot, Wales, with coal. The Svorono was of 3,102 tons. She was built at Sunderland in 1906 and was under command of Captain Alstraut.

3 WARSHIPS DISABLED IN DARDANELLES

CONSTANTINOPLE, via Berlin and Amsterdam, May 1.—Land operations by the allies at the Dardanelles have resulted in heavy losses. One report received here today stated that at least ten thousand French and British troops have been killed and wounded. The War Office today announced the sinking of several more allied transports, the official statement saying:

"Several sailing vessels filled with soldiers were hit by Turkish shells and sunk off Sed-el-Bahr."

Two big British battleships have been damaged to such extent that they have had to withdraw, and one French cruiser has been put out of action. Two transport steamships were disabled.

German Stowaway on Allies' Nitrate Ship

NORFOLK, Va., May 1.—With 10,200 tons of nitrate to be used in making ammunition for the allies, and a German stowaway on board, the Norwegian steamship Gronod arrived here today from Chile. The cargo, which is valued at $350,000, is consigned to the Dupont Powder Company. The German stowaway was a member of the crew of a German ship interned in Chilean waters and he said he was trying to get back to Germany.

MORE SHELLS HURLED INTO FRENCH PORT

By FRANKLIN P. MERRICK,
Special Correspondent of the International News Service.

PARIS, May 1.—Dunkirk has again been bombarded by German artillery, according to official statements issued at Paris and Berlin today.

Ten immense shells, thrown from a distance now placed as twenty-two miles, dropped into the city during the night. The French official statement reads:

"Ten shells fell on Dunkirk last evening. There were numerous victims.

The German official statement as transmitted here said:

"The fortress of Dunkirk was shelled by the German artillery."

GERMAN GUNS AT WESTENDE.

The great German shells dropping into the darkened city during the night caused consternation, according to reports received here. Hundreds of inhabitants left for southern French cities.

The German guns, it is explained, are located near Westende, Belgium, approximately twenty-two miles from Dunkirk.

The bombardment of Dunkirk from such range, indicating that the German mans have developed a new weapon of tremendous power, has caused the utmost anxiety here as to the situation on the north coast.

Recollections of how Liege, Namur, Antwerp and Maubeuge crumbled before the bombardment of the Germandire guns gave rise to apprehension lest this new German weapon give the Teutonic allies an advantage which will lead to repulses of the allied forces in northern France.

From Dunkirk comes the story of the first bombardment, which occurred Thursday. According to this story, the city was serene and quiet, when at about 6 o'clock in the morning, with a whistle and a scream that terminated in an appalling explosion, the first big shell struck. The entire city, it is said, was shaken by the concussion.

This, it is said, was a fifteen-inch shell. A fifteen-year-old girl was the only person killed by the first shell.

DIRECTED BY AIRSHIP.

The German fire was directed by a German aeroplane which circles at a height of 6,500 feet above the city. French planes drove the German off, but four hours later the bombardment recommenced, and six shells struck at intervals of ten minutes. Nine of these shells struck in the very heart of the city. They completely razed several houses, killed nineteen persons, and wounded many others.

At noon four more shells were fired, shaking the city again. The bombardment then ceased until dark Friday night when it was renewed. There is much confusion here as to the nature of the guns.

TOURISTS GET DEATH MESSAGES

By International News Service.

NEW YORK, May 1.—A wave of terror swept over the Cunard liner Lusitania just before sailing time today, when fifty anonymous telegrams, addressed to prominent persons who had taken passage on the ship, warned them that the vessel would be torpedoed and sunk before she reached Liverpool.

Close on the heels of the telegrams came a number of mysterious men whose accents were foreign, and who passed among the passengers and their relatives and friends upon the Cunard pier, whispering that "Death would accompany the Lusitania on this voyage."

"Don't go," was the mysterious warning. The ship will never reach Liverpool. It is death."

The message spread through the crowd with the quickness of wildfire. And yet when search was made for the men who had given the warning, not one could be found. However, the telegrams were there and while the words of these messages were not identical, all conveyed the same warning.

Among the recipients of the telegraphic warnings was Alfred Gwynne Vanderbilt. His telegram read:

"Cancel passage at once. Have learned on the best of authority that the Lusitania is to be torpedoed."

It was signed "Morte."

Relatives of persons who had booked passage pleaded with them not to sail. The usual gaiety which accompanies was all gone. The anxiety was heightened when it was learned that the Anchor liner Cameronian had cancelled her sailing at the last minute.

Among the passengers on the Lusitania, in addition to Mr. Vanderbilt, were Elbert Hubbard, D. A. Thomas, a multi-millionaire coal mine owner of Wales; Charles Frohman, Lady Mark Worth and Charles Klein, the playwright.

CITY OF DUNKIRK AGAIN SHELLED

reports reached the French War Ministry that in the Krupp works at Essen the Germans were perfecting a gun capable of hurling shells twenty-seven miles. It was said that the guns of this type would be used for bombarding the British coast from the French side of the English Channel.

FRENCH ARE MYSTIFIED.

Whether it was one of these guns that shelled Dunkirk War Office officials refuse even to guess, but the French military experts are inclined to think it was, despite reports from correspondents at the front that the bombardment was effected by light guns whose range had been increased by mounting them so that they could be fired at a high angle.

Early dispatches from London today say that though an official statement issued declares that the great gun that bombarded Dunkirk has been attacked by British aviators nothing definite has been said to show that the gun was destroyed and the British military experts are of the opinion that the Germans have more than one weapon of the kind, either being mounted at the front now or on the way there.

Critics of the government take this occasion to berate the cabinet for declaring that an attitude of indifference to the real situation has been fostered by the ministers' confident assertions that Germany is whipped, only plenty of ammunition being necessary to complete the task.

INCREASED RECRUITING.

A few weeks ago Lord Kitchener was quoted as declaring the war would in reality begin in May. This statement was taken to indicate that the general offensive of the allies in the west would start in the month beginning today, but that part of the press opposed to the government points out that instead of the allies opening their offensive, the Germans are making attacks that, while resultless in a general sense, have a most serious aspect.

The London dispatches also indicate that the immediate effect of the bombardment of Dunkirk, at the very threshold of England, was an increase of recruiting in London and other large centres today. At several of the London recruiting offices lines formed this morning before the doors were opened and at noon it was estimated that 2,000 volunteers had enrolled. This was the largest number that has joined the ranks in a single day in the last five weeks.

RUSSIA REPORTS KAISER CHECKED

By FRANCIS LAVELLE MURRAY.
Special Correspondent of the International News Service.

PETROGRAD, May 1.—Russian troops sent to repel the German invasion of Kovno have checked the German attacks along the Dubissa River and have taken the offensive, the War Office announced today.

A battle north of the Dubissa River began yesterday in the angle formed by the Niemen and Dubissa and is proceeding with great violence.

The German forces in this region, commanded by Crown Joachim, form the left wing of the army of General Eichhorn, the centre of which lies on the Shaki-Kalwaria front southwest of Kovno and on the left bank of the Niemen. General Eichhorn has tried in vain for five weeks to cut through the Russian line to the south of the Kovno fortress, but all his attacks have been repulsed. German forces reported near the Courland borders are characterized at the Russian War Office as raiding parties. Cavalry has been sent to drive them back to East Prussia. Several villages have been fired by the German raiders, the War Office stated today, and hundreds made homeless.

Unequivocal attacks by the Germans are making attacks that, while resultless in a general sense, have a most serious aspect.

The London dispatches also indicate that the immediate effect of the bombardment of Dunkirk, at the very threshold of England, was an increase of recruiting in London and other large centres today. At several of the London recruiting offices lines formed this morning before the doors were opened and at noon it was estimated that 2,000 volunteers had enrolled. This was the largest number that has joined the ranks in a single day in the last five weeks.

ALLIES GAINING AT DARDANELLES

the Turkish forts defending the narrows of the Dardanelles.

With the gigantic British superdreadnought Queen Elizabeth taking the lead, ships of the Anglo-French fleet have been bombarding not only the Turkish forts, but the positions of the Turkish army on both the European and Asiatic sides of the Dardanelles.

Forced to withdraw from the north, south and east, the main Turkish force is being concentrated on the Dardanelles littoral between Gallipoli and Maidos, and is in danger of being battled on all sides by the British. It is reported from Tenedos that the peninsula is gradually being cut off from the mainland of Thrace, and that it is now impossible for the Turks to cross the Dardanelles from the European to the Asiatic side because of the long range fire of the Anglo-French fleet.

The Turkish positions at Sestos and Nechori are being heavily bombarded. French Senegalese troops here occupied Yeni Shehr on the Asiatic side of the strait.

As many as 2,000 shells in a single day have been thrown at the Turkish works. The big Krupps of the Turks have done some damage to the ships, but this was slight, according to dispatches from Vice-Admiral Robeck.

Turkish aeroplanes have attacked the British positions at Sedd El Bahr, on the gulf of Suvla, and near Kaba Tepe, while one of the long range guns in the Turkish forts at Killid Bahr, Cham Kalessi and Maidos have been sawing inland and are throwing shells against the redoubts built at Sedd El Bahr by the Australian troops.

The foregoing information is contained in dispatches received today from Athens, Salonika and Tenedos. From the official press bureau advices received from transmission points on the edge of the Dardanelles sphere of operations indicate that while suffering severe losses, the British and French forces are making progress on both sides of the Dardanelles while the fleet keeps up a nightly cannonade.

Maidos, a Turkish town on the Dardanelles, five miles up the narrows, has been destroyed by fire and shells of the Queen Elizabeth.

British forces, of General Sir Ian Hamilton's army, they were landed near Enos and Bulair, have encountered strong artificial defenses, hastily constructed by the Turks which hamper their advance.

It is regarded as significant that no mention was made of the operations on the Gallipoli peninsula near Bulair and Enos in the official report of the Admiralty.

The British hold practically all of the southern end of Gallipoli peninsula from a point near Krithia, according to reports. The allies have secured a foothold on the shores of Suvla Gulf and a force has advanced inland from Kaba Tepe.

The great operations of the Anglo-French forces to capture the Turkish Constantinople have not yet begun to assume a critical stage. Both sides are reinforcing, and the first partial achievement for the Turks became of the great superiority of the British ships. A transport that was convoying Turkish troops from Nagara Kalessi to Cham Kalessi was sunk by the Queen Elizabeth, north of Dardanelles Bay. Soldiers wounded in the fight on the shores of Suvla Gulf tell of the bravery of the English and Australian soldiers, who stormed the Turkish redoubts.

ITALY LIKELY TO END DIPLOMACY SOON FOR WAR DECLARATION

By D. E. J. DILLON.
Boston American and London Daily Telegraph Exclusive Cable Service.

ROME, May 1.—The weights in the political scale which inclines to the likelihood of Italian neutrality or intervention have considerably altered their relative values in the past couple of days.

At present all the symptoms point to a speedy decision in favor of intervention. Hitherto the tokens were warranting a strong impression that accord with Austria was superfluous, probable, seemed partially balanced by the sentiment of Germany and Austrian negotiators and their supporters. Today this counterpoise has vanished, the grounds on which the Teutons based their calculations having been pulled in solitary confinement.

Apparently the sole question which still remains to be answered is, when will the curtain fall on the diplomatic prologue to the resolute struggle in Europe?

Officially nothing has been divulged of a nature to justify this forecast, but private talk was expressed by the French embassador here after a long conversation with Baron Sonnino, correspondents of the papers desiring from the Austro-German negotiations and the favorable turn of the conversations of Rome with London, Paris and Petrograd.

CANADIAN BRAVERY AT ST. JULIEN IS PRAISED IN REPORT

OTTAWA, Ont., May 1.—"A great and glorious feat of arms" was achieved by the Canadian soldiers who opposed the Germans on the St. Julien front north of Ypres in Belgium, says Sir Max Aitken, official observer with the Canadian expeditionary army in Europe, in a narrative issued through the militia department today.

The Thirteenth Battalion of Royal Highlanders, the Thirteenth Battalion of the Royal Montreal Regiment and the Nineteenth Winnipeg Rifles come in for special mention. The Canadians fought with conspicuous gallantry in stemming the advances of the Germans, but had to give way before overwhelming numbers. Although the Germans poured in a devastating artillery fire, the Canadians refused to leave their trenches until the earthworks had been completely destroyed by shells.

Lieutenant-Colonel Lipsett and Brigadier-General Curry of the Third Canadian brigade were praised for their tenacity and courage in resisting the German advance.

"Those who died have died worthy of Canada," said Sir Max.

DRUG USERS ARE MADE DESPERATE

by a newspaper, which had received its information from a discharged prisoner.

Albert Urquhart was twenty-nine years old. The Deer Island records say he was a "shoe worker," living at 100 Carver street, son of Mrs. Robert Urquhart of 106 Park street, Medicine Hat, Alberta, Canada, and that he was serving four months at the island.

Urquhart was committed for selling morphine. Commissioner Shaw said today:

"As a matter of fact, this man was sent down for selling drugs. He was classed as a user of drugs. He received the same treatment as other drug fiends on the island."

This raised the question to the commissioner whether Urquhart had been put in solitary confinement, because the commissioner has been following a new and most rigid policy in the matter to wipe out the so-called "dope scandal" which has attached to the institution for years.

"Dope fiends" at Deer Island, as at Charles Street Jail and most other penal and corrective institutions, have been segregated. At Deer Island it is said that "dope" users have sometimes been put in "solitary."

Commissioner Shaw was asked if Urquhart had been in "solitary" as well as segregated. The former means, as it implies, being shut up in a cell alone, usually to reduce him from a refractory to submissive state of mind. Segregation means that a certain class of prisoners are kept in a section by themselves.

"Urquhart had not been put in solitary confinement," said Commissioner Shaw. "nor had he received other punishment. He had a clean record at the island."

"Why was not the suicide given out?" the commissioner was asked, "if it occurred at 7:20 Thursday morning."

"I didn't know it myself until I was called on the telephone by a newspaper at half past one this morning."

Shaw's typewritten report on the suicide was sent to the penal institutions department by Dr. Bernard P. Corrigan, the doctor at Deer Island. This report was dated April 29, the day of the act.

In explanation of his lack of knowledge of this report before today, Commissioner Shaw said he left his office yesterday noon for Sherborn and was away the rest of the day.

Finally the Commissioner declared:

"As a matter of fact, I am not going to give out any news of happenings at that institution except through the office of the Mayor."

Mayor Curley is out of the city until next Tuesday or Wednesday.

Part of the commissioner's crusade against the "dope" scandal at the island was a thirty-day "dead line" established about the premises. For that length of time no visitors were allowed prisoners, nor was any island attendant allowed to come up to the city to visit relatives or friends, or for any other reason. The attendants protested vigorously and some went so far as to resign.

COE CLEW CAME FROM PORTER

West, read in the papers of Harry's disappearance and saw his picture. When he came to New York several weeks later he told a detective that he was sure Harry had gone West on his train.

"Using that as a clew we traced Harry to Portland, but then we followed a false clew that led us to Mexico, where we found it was false. After that we tried new trails, and at last we found him in Fairbanks.

"Dr. Coe and I will not go to Alaska. We have friends in Portland and Seattle, and some of these will go. I think. Traffic doesn't open until June, so it may be then before Harry can return."

Coe was located in the outskirts of Fairbanks, Alaska, under circumstances which fall to clear up the mystery of his strange flight.

Dr. Harry Clark Coe, his father, has arranged with a Dr. Coe of Vancouver, insanity expert in Alaska, to go to Fairbanks, to see the man reported to be Coe Jr. If the man proves to be the missing salesman, the insanity expert is instructed to determine his mental condition.

The brief telegraphic reports of his discovery state that he was filling a clerical position satisfactorily with a mining company in Fairbanks. Nothing in these reports indicate that the young man is not in perfect mental health. Although Coe is said to have been found a week ago, the news was not forwarded to the missing man's wife or her mother, Mrs. Allen Ainslee. Mrs. Ainslee, with whom Mrs. Coe, Jr., has been living since the birth of Coe's daughter, June, a month ago, received from a reporter her first report that Coe had been found.

SUMMONS FOR SECRETARY CHASE

Secretary J. Frank Chase of the Watch and Ward Society will be summoned into court next Wednesday to answer to a complaint of assault and battery on Attorney John J. Cronin, following a disturbance Thursday in a corridor of the courthouse. Judge Dewd, who heard the evidence presented by Attorney John T. Feeney, counsel for Cronin, said he would not grant a warrant.

On hearing this decision Attorney Henry H. Rond, who represented Chase, asked for a warrant for Cronin's arrest on the charge of slander, but the court said he did not know of any statute that would permit such a warrant.

Later Mr. Chase sent a statement to the newspapers. During cross-examination in the Municipal Court the Rev. Mr. Chase admitted he had gone to the Castle Square Hotel on the night of April 17, 1914, or thereabouts, with a woman not his wife.

Mr. Chase said he and a Miss Sterrett registered as man and wife. He replied to further questions that he and the young woman were at the Scollop in the Revere House early that night, where he had some drinks. Then they went to the South End hotel, where they remained twenty minutes.

"Did you tell an attorney," asked Mr. Feeney, "that you would not have gone to the hotel that night if you had been drinking?"

"I did not," answered Chase. Chase explained the young woman was an agent of the society.

"Did you ever sign yourself 'J. Johnson, Pawtucket, R. I.'?" asked Feeney.

"I did not," answered Chase emphatically.

"What name did you use in registering at the hotel?"

"I do not remember."

CHASE'S STATEMENT.

Mr. Chase's statement reads:

I fully appreciated the fact that any person assuming the direction of an organized movement against vice, such as the position I hold, is placed where he is peculiarly subject to baseless attacks on his personal character.

The interest of various wrongdoers, particularly those in the drug traffic, in having my character so injured by falsehoods and baseless insinuations as to affect the successful continuance of my activities is self-evident. The result is that use is made of the statements of a discharged former employe of the society, now seeking revenge, and of existing ethical on a serious indictment.

To time the action of my directors, after full investigation of the charges, is a sufficient and conclusive answer. Malice as any man dislikes to be made a target for slanderous falsehood, yet if it is necessary as a part of my work I can face it cheerfully.

The prosecutions which we have conducted against the "dope" distributors—forty-one in number since January 1—have constituted a splendid campaign with the best of results. Naturally, one result is added, i. e. animosity against me personally, but I know that no fair-minded person will believe such discredited falsehoods from such a source.

Investigating work, where one has to simulate what he is not, is dangerous at best to a man's reputation, since his acts can be distorted and made to mean what was not intended. In the particular case on which the insinuations of yesterday were based there were believed to be large results of distinct value to the community to be gained. This led to what now is obvious is an unwise course.

VOTE OF DIRECTORS.

From the Rev. Frederick B. Allen, president of the Watch and Ward Society, came a statement that the society had adopted resolutions in part as follows:

"Whereas, the question has arisen as to the wisdom of the method used by those in the employ of the New England Watch and Ward Society in securing evidence against a certain hotel in the city of Boston.

"Therefore, we, the directors of this society, record our conclusions as follows:

"1. The account called to our attention emanates from sources unfriendly to the secretary and contains exaggerated falsehoods.

"2. The motive of our employes was to secure certain evidence urgently required."

Russians Repulsed Around Uzsok Pass

By International News Service.

VIENNA, May 1.—Efforts of the Russians to capture the crests east of Uzsok Pass in the Carpathian mountains have resulted in complete failure, the Austrian War Office announced today.

In the Opor valley, south of Tucholka, the Russians with reinforcements of heavy artillery, launched a number of attacks against the Austro-German forces, but all were repulsed.

MISS ROSAMOND GREY SMITH of Brockton to wed F. Harold Tolman this evening.

Miss Rosamond Grey Smith of Brockton and F. Harold Tolman, Harvard graduate and an official of the Brockton Fair Horse Show, will be married at the Copley-Plaza this evening. The Rev. Dudley Hays Ferrell, pastor of the Unity Church, will officiate.

A wedding breakfast will be served at 7:30 in the evening. Only members of the immediate families of the couple will attend. The guests will include Mr. and Mrs. Warren B. Smith, the bride's parents; Mr. and Mrs. George B. Holland, Miss Blanche Tolman, Miss Dorothy Smith, George Tolman, Mr. and Mrs. Harry Tolman, Rev. Mr. Ferrell and Daniel Tolman.

The ceremony will be performed beneath a huge floral wedding bell. The couple will leave for Atlantic City tomorrow.

Miss Smith has been prominent in society theatricals since graduating from the Brockton High School in 1913. She was vice-president of the senior class and was leading lady in the annual senior class play. She is a member of the 10x1 Club of the Church of the Unity of Brockton. Her father is cashier of the Home National Bank. The Smith home is at No. 837 North Main street.

Besides being a director of the Brockton Fair Horse Show, Mr. Tolman is a member of the Thorny Lea and Country Golf Clubs, Commercial Club, University Club, Economic Club and Wonder Club. He is treasurer of the Tolman Print of Boston and Brockton. He was graduated from Exeter in 1905 and from Harvard in 1909.

BOTH SIDES RAP RAILROAD AWARD

CHICAGO, May 1.—The award handed down by the Federal Board of Arbitration in the wage dispute between the Western railroads and their 65,000 engineers, firemen and hostlers, was condemned today by both sides. The brotherhoods had demanded wage increases amounting to approximately $41,000,000. As the labor chiefs argued the complicated schedules, the men will only receive a scant million dollars a year advance.

Representatives of the railroads figured the increase would cost them somewhat in the neighborhood of $5,000,000, and they expressed dissatisfaction with the decision of the board. The increase was dubbed "A mere pittance" by an official of one of the brotherhoods.

The firemen in the switching service were given the most substantial raise, and the engineers in the switching service also fared well.

In the passenger service the engineers were granted a minimum of $4.50 and the firemen $2.50 per hundred miles or less or for six hours and forty minutes or less.

In the freight service the engineers' pay is fixed at a minimum of $4.50 and firemen $2.90 for ten hours or less, or 160 miles or less. In the switching service the minimum is fixed at $4.25 for engineers and $2.70 for firemen, time to begin when men report for duty and to end when an engine is placed on designated track.

The men were also successful in their fight for a revision of rules under which they work.

Among them were the granting of compensation at the rate of 4.3 cents per mile for engineers and 2.5 cents for firemen, when "deadheading" on business for the company; elimination of surprise tests conducted under conditions that are hazardous to employes; permitting firemen to bunk a helper when considered necessary in shovelling coal forward and compelling the railroads to furnish a second fireman where one is needed.

Given in detailed figures, the story is this: Wage increase demanded, $41,000,000; wage increase granted, $1,020,425.10; increase per year to engineers, $211,111.68; increase per year to firemen, $509,386.70; increase per year granted hostlers (estimated), $200,000; engineers asking raise, 27,000; firemen asking raise, 30,000; hostlers asking raise, 8,000; railroads involved, 86.

Germans Drop Bombs on Belfort Fortress

By HENRY L. PERRY.
Special Correspondent of the International News Service.

GENEVA, May 1.—Seven German aeroplanes attacked the great French fortress of Belfort Thursday, dropping numerous bombs that are reported to have caused serious damage. After flying above Belfort for half an hour they were finally driven off by French artillery.

Model to Wed Harvard Man Won by Rich 'Gold Coaster'

Eileen Livingston.

Eileen Livingston and Leland Henry Niles to Marry in June.

Eileen Livingston, artist's model, and an amateur dancer of note, to wed Leland Henry Niles, a Harvard Gold Coaster, sometime in June. Niles' home is No. 81 Minaville street, Amsterdam, N. Y. Miss Livingston is the daughter of Mrs. A. E. Livingston of No. 320 Bunker Hill street, Charlestown.

Miss Livingston is twenty and Niles is twenty-six. She has a remarkable popularity as a model and has posed for Raymond M. Crosby, W. Churchill, W. E. Paxton, Howard Smith and others.

Niles was graduated from Phillips Exeter in 1910 and from Harvard in 1914. He entered the Harvard Graduate School of Architecture and recently was awarded a $1,000 prize offered by the American Society of Architects. He rooms in Manter Hall, Cambridge.

The two met at a the dansant, at the Copley-Plaza, and since then they have appeared together at many dances in Boston and in the college world at Cambridge. Miss Livingston's beauty is remarkable, and her skill as a dancer is such that she attracts attention wherever she appears. She is slender dark, with luxuriant hair that is the delight of the artists for whom she poses.

Niles will finish his course in architecture in June, and it is expected the marriage will follow shortly. The first intimation that the two were more than friends came when Miss Livingston appeared with a diamond upon her finger.

She evaded the questions of her friends till recently, when she admitted her engagement.

DOLAN'S EVIDENCE BLOW AT BARNES

By L. V. B. RUCKER.

Special Correspondent of the International News Service.

SYRACUSE, May 1.—With Colonel Roosevelt's foundation laid for the proof of alleged printing graft at Albany, by which William Barnes and, inferentially, Charles F. Murphy profited, counsel on both sides of the Barnes-Roosevelt $50,000 libel suit today were heard at work strengthening their fences.

There was no session of court today, the trial being adjourned yesterday afternoon until Monday morning.

It was a stinging blow to Barnes, though not exactly unexpected, when Justice William S. Andrews allowed in evidence the testimony of Michael R. Dolan, of the Albany Argus, tending to show Barnes' control not to say monopoly of the city, county and State printing at the capital.

DOLAN'S TESTIMONY.

When the court refused to allow William Loeb, Jr., to tell of alleged vice graft conditions in Albany, in which connection Roosevelt's answer to the complaint alleged that Barnes' political henchmen out of State jobs profited from gambling and other illegal resorts, it was hoped by the plaintiff that on the same ground the printing evidence would likewise be excluded.

Dolan testified at great length, detailing the wheels within wheels whereby the contracts for printing were let. He swore that in order to obtain contracts of all the Argus was forced to pay the Journal Company, owned by Barnes, 15 and 20 per cent. of the total of the contracts.

Dolan identified one check from the Argus Company to the Journal Company, and it was exhibited to the jury. Dolan will resume the stand Monday to finish his direct and undergo cross-examination at the hands of William M. Ivins.

THE WHITMAN LETTER.

The Whitman letter is still a topic of absorbing intergst, which was not lessened when Charles H. Duell, Jr., who received it from Whitman and turned it over to Roosevelt, was expelled from court by Justice Andrews because he applauded the testimony of Senator Frederick Davenport when he compared Barnes to a Nero who fiddled while Rome burned.

This morning Colonel Roosevelt came to the Onondaga and conferred with his attorneys. Mr. Barnes went to Albany for the week-end.

Henderson Held on Charge of Murder

FITCHBURG, May 1.—Raymond Henderson, charged with the murder last Tuesday night of George Sweeney, waived examination in the Police Court and was held without bail for the Gand Jury. Henderson's defence, it is understood, will be that he was awakened from sleep by the noise Sweeney and others were making in the street, and that he went to the window and fired while still half-asleep and mentally irresponsible.

FILM MEN FIND OBJECTIONS TO COMPROMISE CENSOR BILL

Motion picture producers who have $35,000,000 or more invested in the film industry in Greater Boston see as much opposed to the compromise measure drafted by the Legislative Committee on Judiciary as they were to the vicious Sullivan censorship bill which, with kindred measures, met a merited death.

Exhibitors and theatrical interests generally consider the president of yesterday's executive session as outrageous and menacing as were several of the batch rejected.

The bill reported by the Judiciary Committee is considered less dangerous than the present statute (Chapter 491, Acts of 1908) in that it would permit an elected board of three censors to suspend a performance or revoke a theatre license for any cause that might satisfy the whim or caprice of the triumvirate.

The compromise bill makes the chief justice of Boston Municipal Court as a censor and his views and those of the Mayor and police commissioner, who are the censors under the present law, must be unanimous. From their triple decision there is no appeal for the aggrieved theatre manager of film owner.

But the most amazing feature of the new draft is the elimination of the words "obscene" and "immoral" and other specific cause and the vesting of authority to censor or banish a show of any kind for any of a thousand reasons that might suggest themselves to the censors. The new bill provides a latitude that is limitless and is variable as the temperaments, emotions and views of the judges might prove.

POINT OUT DANGERS.

Its constitutional qualities are questioned. It gives the three censors the power to condemn a photoplay or any other public performance without ascribing any reason and without notifying the persons whose interests, contracts and production are at stake, a chance to remedy or expurgate certain parts.

It bestows an authority as unjust and dangerous as it is chaotic. It might be argued in defence of the judicial power that unanimous judgment by a board to which the chief justice of a court has been added, insures the rights of the producer, but producers question this.

Section 1 of the present law deals with the granting of licenses and Section 2 reads:

"If at any time under a license granted hereunder, there shall be given a theatrical exhibition, public show, public amusement or exhibition, any part of which, in the opinion of both the Mayor and police commissioner of Boston, is obscene or immoral or tends to injure the morals of the community and is not eliminated at the request of the Mayor, then he may suspend the license."

Here then, under the law in operation, are specific reasons for a censorship or suspension, but the proposition of the Judiciary Committee would enable the censors to obstruct for a wide variety of reasons. Here motives might creep in, making the bill as hazardous as the Sullivan and the other measures.

Should the three censors by the accident of election or appointment be of the same race or religious persuasion their views might be objected to by producers offering films of any other style or public entertainment hostile to the tenets or tastes of the censor trio.

It is for this reason that the motion picture producers prefer the Coggan bill which would leave the judging to the Mayor and police commissioner, who would give the theatre managers and film owners the right to appeal to a Superior or Supreme Court sitting in equity.

All was not smooth sailing in the two-hour session of the Judiciary Committee. There was friction and difference of opinion. Two members dissented from the report on the compromise drifts—Essex S. Abbott of Haverhill and Eben K. Bowser of Wakefield. Senator W. J. Sullivan of South Boston threatens to introduce a counter bill.

Attorney John F. Cusick, counsel for "The Birth of a Nation," declined today to discuss the bill submitted by the Judiciary Committee, other than to say he preferred the Coggan bill and did not relish the striking out of the "immoral" and "obscene" clause. He said:

"The Coggan bill would furnish the ends desired by the theatres and motion picture producers. It would give them a chance to appeal from a hasty or unjust decision by a Mayor or police commissioner and would give a justice who is not so apt to be swayed by public sentiment to determine the merits of the case.

SPEAKS FOR PRODUCERS.

"In a Mayor we have the choice of the majority. He is in a position to feel the public pulse, as is the police commissioner. Both represent active life in the community while a court justice is less apt to be influenced by multiple elements.

"It was for that reason we felt the Coggan bill would guarantee fair play and justice to the motion picture men and show interests generally, giving them a chance to have a full court hearing, which is their constitutional right and privilege, to correct any mistake that might be made by faulty censorship.

"Right of appeal is never dangerous and is often of tremendous benefit to parties that may have been unliberally or innocently wronged. Motion picture producers are careful of the public morals and proud of the influence of photo-plays. They are eager to comply with the law to co-operate with local authorities in developing the educational powers of the film.

"They are jealous of their growing industry and anxious at all times to do anything that will improve and uplift the community and enrich its amusement advantages."

90,000 Children Ask Liberty Bell Visit Los Angeles

PHILADELPHIA, May 1.—Ninety thousand school children in Los Angeles and vicinity are conducting an aggressive campaign to get the Liberty Bell committee to stop there with the treasured relic of Independence for a three-days' celebration on the way to the Panama-Pacific Exposition.

In addition to a long petition signed by public school children and their teachers, scores of individual communications, including a telegram from Frank Wiggins, secretary of the Los Angeles Chamber of Commerce, have been received by Mayor Blankenburg.

The committee which will settle definitely the route over which the Bell will be taken will organize on Monday. Mayor Blankenburg has expressed the wish that the stops be made at Omaha, Kansas City, Lincoln and Denver. This practically determines a part of the itinerary.

Seattle and Portland are making a strong fight against the cities of Southern California and it will be left for the councilmanic committee to decide between the claims of the two sections.

Another petition, signed by 250 women of Reno, Nev., has been received.

'Treating' Shuts 22 Saloons, but Victims Appeal

The Licensing Board, determined to stamp out "treating" by bartenders, refused to grant renewals to twenty-two Boston saloons, and they are today closed until the appeals of their owners be heard. The board expects to give a hearing to the protestants Tuesday. The places which did not open today as a result of "treating" charges are:

Simon & Goldberg, 39 Leverett street.

TODAY'S STOCK MARKETS

By W. H. ROSS, Financial Editor

Stocks were on a little higher level at the opening, with equipment and "war order" issues getting the most attention. There were a number of railroad and industrial stocks which closed off, however. Among several securities were Studebaker, Baldwin Locomotive, Westinghouse, Pressed Steel Car, Republic Iron & Steel and Railway Steel Springs. Weakness in coppers developed early, but a number soon recovered. United States Steel and American Can made sales and were in demand. President Joyce of the National Surety Company of New York estimates that our surplus bonding capacity in this country are likely to total $1,000,000,000.

EARLY N. Y. GAINS.

Among early gains in New York were American Can ½, Amalgamated Copper ¾, Steel ¾, Studebaker ¾, American Car & Foundry ¼, Bethlehem Steel ½, Goodrich ¼, Westinghouse ½, Baldwin Locomotive ¼, Pressed Steel Car 1, Union Pacific ¼, N. Y. Central ¼, Pennsylvania ¼ and American Sugar ¾. Rock Island was off ¼, Atchison had receded ¼ and Reading ¼.

BOSTON COPPERS QUIET.

There was less breadth to copper share trading in Boston and this group did not average strong. Among declines were Copper Range ¼, Calumet & Hecla ½, North Butte ¼ and Monawk 1. Alaska Gold was off ¼, Butte & Superior ½. Among gains were Calumet & Arizona ¾, United Fruit ¼, U. S. Smelting ¼ and United Shoe ¼.

FOREIGN TRADE OF U. S.

Regarding the foreign trade of this country, Boerslaner writes: "From January 1 to April 30 Uncle Sam sold to Dame Europe $555,000,000 more than he bought of her. But that is not the whole story. From August to the present Uncle Sam has taken from Dame Europe not less than $2,500,000,000 of American securities, has purchased from her and her colonies $122,000,000 of government bonds, has given unrecorded credits of many millions to the warring countries—and withal has more money in bank than ever before—that is, money remains plentiful at about the lowest rate in banking history.

"There are still two more items to be put on the credit side. American tourists, who spend annually from $250,000,000 to $300,000,000, will this year stay at home and do their spending here. Ninety-five per cent. of Americans who resided abroad—had lived there for years—are now on their native soil. The $100,000,000 which they drew yearly from American investments will go into American pockets."

TEXTILE MILLS BUSY.

As to the present industrial situation in this part of the country about which reports are encouraging, Hunt, Ellis & Co. say: "The tide of manufacturing activity in the East is rising sharply. New England textile mills are running within 5 per cent. and 10 per cent. of capacity—machine companies are working over-time—shows factories are busier.

Railroad earnings and the steel trade are being closely watched by those who feel that the only thing now needed for a tremendous country-wide boom in business is more activity in domestic trade. The steel business is feeling the effect of more equipment buying by roads. Orders now pending call for about 75,000 cars. On the basis of March earnings it is said that the U. S. Steel Corporation's net earnings for the current quarter would approximate about $21,500,000, but that sales of steel products for April fell a little below the total of the previous month. The figures demonstrate this are not at hand, however.

GARDNER RENEWS ATTACK ON NAVY

Congressman A. P. Gardner has returned to his charges that the United States navy is unprepared to defend this nation from invasion, and in an open letter, addressed to former President Taft, replies to Secretary Daniels, whose letter to President Garfield of Williams College maintained that the navy was sufficiently effective.

"Perhaps," writes Mr. Gardner, "President Garfield might also have been interested to learn whether or not our naval experts think our navy sufficient for our defence.

"If President Garfield is like the rest of us, he probably will be glad to learn whether or not our fighting ships meet modern conditions as to speed, whether or not our aircraft have kept pace with the improvements in the air fleets of the rest of the world and whether or not our mines, torpedoes and ammunition are sufficient in the judgment of the ordnance officers of the navy.

"I think you will agree with me that a definite statement on these points would be more profitable than a discussion as to whether it is a Republican administration or a Democratic administration that is most to blame for the fact that we are so deplorably behind the times.

Billy Sunday Umpires Game for Boys Today

By International News Service.

PATERSON, N. J., May 1.—In spring Billy Sunday's fancy lightly turns to thoughts of baseball. So he's going to get out on the diamond today and umpire a game of the great American sport. The Paterson High School and the Newtown High School are going to fight for a "championship."

Pupils of both schools were jammed in the tabernacle, along with some thousands of other brawny, sandy-haired youths and pigtailed girls. It was a school night and there were songs and cheers and yells enough to satisfy the most gluttonous undergraduate. Sunday was presented with a red and black Paterson High School pennant. The high school orchestra was on the platform, and divided honors with Rodey and Ackley. It played out Senza Sundie to the piano accompaniment of a youth with slicked black hair, while Rodey smiled and smoothed the waistcoat of a brand new checked suit.

They say Billy Sunday's got no style. Why, he's got style all the while," was one of the yells that made Sunday beam, while cheers and shrill whistles ripped the sawdust clouded air.

NEWTONS LOSE EXPRESS OFFICES

The American Express offices in the Newtons were abolished this morning, and all the sections thus bereft of agencies are to be covered by wagons and auto trucks from the Newton railroad station. Patrons of the outlying districts, such as Weston, Riverside and Auburndale, are already protesting against the inconveniences resulting from the change.

The decision to abolish the agencies came without warning. The local agents, some of whom had served the company for twenty to thirty years, were called up by telephone late yesterday and told that their services would terminate last night.

They had just paid into the head office their annual fees for next year's bonds, and some of them protested to headquarters that they had been treated unfairly in not being given advance notice, so that they might dispose of their horses, wagons and other equipment which they had to maintain at their own expense. A considerable number of local drivers and other employes are thrown out of work by the change.

Farrar Visits Frank in Cell at Atlanta Jail

ATLANTA, Ga., May 1.—Geraldine Farrar of the Metropolitan Opera Company visited Leo M. Frank, under death sentence, in his cell in the Fulton County jail and discussed his case with him for almost an hour.

Miss Farrar went to the jail accompanied only by her traveling companion, and every precaution was taken to prevent her visit or its object becoming public.

Reports that Miss Farrar had offered to aid Frank in his fight to secure executive clemency were denied by Frank.

The condemned man said, however, Miss Farrar expressed sympathy for him and displayed great interest in his case, knowing she had followed the evidence closely.

"Miss Farrar was here only a short time," said Frank. "We discussed music, of which I am very fond. Miss Farrar came simply to express her interest and sympathy."

WILSON HERE TO NAME GRANDCHILD

WILLIAMSTOWN, May 1.—Little Francis Sayre, three months and thirteen days old, will be visited today by his presidential granddaddy, who tomorrow will stand as godfather at his christening.

Shortly after the train left Philadelphia the setting of an emergency brake caused a bump, breaking a window. As soon as secret service men ascertained the cause the presidential party returned to slumber.

"Mr. Wilson is coming here as a private citizen and the christening is to be strictly a family affair," said Francis B. Sayre, father of the President's only grandchild. "He likes to come to Williamstown because the townspeople always recognize his desire to secure, while here, a complete respite from public attention and the cares of office."

President Wilson is scheduled to arrive at 4 o'clock. He will be accompanied by Dr. Carey T. Grayson, Miss Margaret Wilson, his unmarried daughter; his cousin, Miss Helen Woodrow Bones, and a stenographer. The usual squad of secret service men will, of course, come on with Mr. Wilson.

The christening will take place at St. John's Episcopal Church.

This is Celestia called "The Goddess"

THE question, "Who Is Celestia?" is here answered.

Celestia, "The Goddess," is a character only, but such a character as appears but once in a century of literature.

"The Goddess" is the central figure of what is to be the most imposing motion picture serial and story ever created

All of the preliminaries that we have given you in the last week have been to prepare you for what you are to see and read. You have been going through what might be termed a memory bath! For you must forget everything you have seen in the theatres and realize that indeed a surprise awaits you—a surprise in the shape of an entirely new form of motion picture entertainment. "The Goddess" must dramatically impress you with the true literary merits of

A sweet, girlish, innocent figure, claiming to be from Heaven—sent to save the world, is thrust into the busy mart. Here she is jeered at, laughed at, feared and then beloved.

The fact that this editorial sanction is back of "The Goddess" attests its artistic worth. The story is by Gouverneur Morris—most perfect living writer of tales of this character.

From this the scenario has been made by Charles W. Goddard, author of "The Misleading Lady," "The Ghost Breaker," "The Perils of Pauline," and the far-famed "Exploits of Elaine."

The cast includes Anita Stewart, who will give to "The Goddess" qualities that the author dreamed of, but never thought could be created. The direction will be by Ralph Ince. The whole is a perfect

NEWS AND NOTES OF THE CHURCHES

Unitarians will discuss "Hills" Sunday and his methods during Anniversary Week in the First Parish Harvard Square, Cambridge, May 25. This meeting will be under the charge of the American Unitarian Association. The speakers will be the Rev. S. McC. Crowther, D. D., pastor of the church; Professor F. G. Peabody of Harvard, and the Rev. William T. Sullivan of New York.

The anniversary sermon will be preached during the same week by the Rev. Paul Revere Frothingham of the Arlington Street Church in Tremont Temple.

Ministers' wives will have an opportunity to tell what is expected of them at an informal gathering to be held at the residence of the Rev. E. A. Eliot, D. D., No. 25 Reservoir street, Cambridge, on the last Thursday of this month.

The Rev. John Haynes Holmes will preside at the Free Religious Association in Ford Hall, on the last Friday of the month, when notable addresses may be expected from a number of representative ministers and laymen.

At the annual meeting of Tremont Temple, held recently, it was announced there were 165 baptisms for the last twelve months. The total money receipts were $48,246. The Sunday School has 2,500 members with an average weekly attendance of 1,158. The rental receipts in the Temple were $14,324 and the expenses $10,901.

One result of the "Better Life Campaign," held in the Dorchester Baptist Temple, was the addition of fifty-two persons to membership. There are now 809 members.

The Rev. F. W. Bakeman, D. D., who has been pastor of the First Baptist Church, Chelsea, for thirty-one years, has resigned and been given a purse of gold by his former parishioners.

The Rev. Malcom E. Taylor, rector of Grace Episcopal Church, Everett, will begin Tuesday in his church a class in Social Service. Mr. Taylor says: "I believe every church should have a constructive program for the social needs of the community. The community policy should become a permanent part of the life and activity of the church.

The Rev. H. P. Bull of St. John the Evangelista's Church, Bowdoin street, is one of the strongest opponents to Bishop Lawrence's pension plan which is destined to become the pension plan for the Episcopal Church in this country. He calls it "a great scandal." "While providing for the poorer clergy a bare minimum of subsistence," he says, "we also provide by this plan more than is necessary for clergy who have been in receipt of more than a living wage, even of wealth."

A special musical program will be rendered in the Shawmut Congregational Church tomorrow evening. This church is still without a pastor. Deacon Henry E. Warren is acting as assistant pastor.

Seventy voices will sing Gounod's "Messe Solennelle" Sunday evening in the Union Congregational Church, Columbus avenue. An orchestra of twenty-five players will assist.

Six Episcopal ministers will be advanced to the order of the priesthood in Trinity Church, Sunday morning, by Bishop Lawrence.

One of the most costly stained glass chancel windows will be dedicated tomorrow morning in the new church of the Redeemer (Episcopal), Chestnut Hill. The subject of the window is an appeal to the young life of the community and an exaltation of the family life. It measures twenty-one feet high and eighteen feet wide. It is a memorial gift of Andrew Adie of Bay State road, and was made in London.

Boston Universalists will discuss, Monday, in Ballou Hall, Moreland street, "Recent Universalist Evangelism." The Rev. Edson Reifsnider will make the opening address.

"The Coptic Church" is the subject of the address to be given by the Rev. Henry Bedinger of St. Peter's Church, Salem, before the Episcopal ministers of Greater Boston, in cathedral rooms of St. Paul's, Monday, at 1 p. m.

Out door musical vesper rallies will be held in Central square, East Boston, during May, by the Unitarian Alliance of that section. The oldest of the Unitarian Temperance Society will be shown from a motor car and among those who will speak are Mrs. Ellen F. G. Peabody, the Rev. Lyman Rutledge, and Mr. and Mrs. William Tilton.

Girls are being taught the proper way to walk and to stand erect on the street at the gymnasium classes, every Tuesday and Thursday evening, in the Children's Church, Warrenton street. The boys and girls of this church will hold a musical recital Friday, May 7.

"The Brewers' Big Horses" will be sung at a great demonstration to be made in Tremont Temple against the liquor traffic, Sunday evening. The Rev. Dr. Cortland Myers, pastor of the Temple, will preach on "The Doom of the Liquor Traffic."

The Rev. Dr. C. H. Patton will address the monthly meeting of the Woman's Board of Missions in Pilgrim Hall, Friday, May 7, at 10:30 a. m.

The Rev. Dr. S. A. Eliot will entertain the Cambridge Association of Unitarian ministers at his home, No. 25 Reservoir street, Monday, at 1 p. m.

Sues Wife's Father for Home Expenses

In a bill filed in the Suffolk Superior Court, Benjamin Levy, a traveling salesman, seeks to recover from his father-in-law, Samuel B. Coon, of Danvers, $12,000 to $15,000 for household expenses he says he paid for fifteen years. Levy declares that he married Bernice M. Cook in August 1899, and that his wife's parents went to live with them, his father-in-law agreeing to share equally the expenses. He claims that homes were maintained in Allston, Danvers and Boston and that he was forced to meet virtually all the expenses.

Skull Fractured by Trolley Car

An unidentified man, forty years old, was knocked down by a street car on Washington street, near Milk. He was taken from beneath the fender and rushed to the Relief Hospital, where he was found to have a fracture of the skull. A letter found in his pocket bore the address of James J. Shaughnessey, No. 1114 Washington street, South End.

500 Children in Festival Solo Dances Are Features

Mary Frances Hoffman — Sigmund A. Lavine

Mrs. William S. Butler's May Festival takes place this afternoon and evening in Mechanics building. More than 500 children take part in some of the dance effects.

Solo dances will be a feature of the program. Flora Merrill in an Oriental dance, Louise Brown, a clever young toe dancer, in "The Man in the Moon," and Muriel Crowell in Spanish dances will constitute three features.

Other specialty dances will be presented by Mary Vosnakis, Caroline Brine, Glennie Mowatt, Doris Suss, Helen Mann, Helen Linnehan, Vivian Parker, Melba Proctor and Pauline Mason.

Paul Jones Chute and Stella Rea will do a cakewalk and Leroy Young and Amelia Burnham will present a modern ballroom dances.

"War and Peace" and "The Enchanted Glade" are two of the larger dance numbers.

Mary Frances Hoffman will appear in a solo. She is the daughter of Mrs. May Fiske Hoffman of the Players' League.

Another youthful figure of interest will be Sigmund A. Lavine, seven-year-old son of Philip H. Lavine, manager of the Castle Square Theatre. Today marks his fourth appearances at Mrs. Butler's May Festivals. He has a part in the ballet and also gives a scotch dance.

B. C. Seniors Name Class Day Speakers

The Boston College seniors have elected class day speakers as follows: Class orator, Edmund J. Brandon, of Cambridge, winner of the $50 gold oratorical prize; class poet, Frederick W. Wennerberg, of Allston; class will, John E. Carney, of Roxbury; class historian, William R. Duffy, of South Weymouth; ivy orator, William V. McKenny, of Dorchester, and class prophet, J. Bernard Flynn, of Framingham. Thomas E. Cotter and James J. McMahon are in charge of class day exercises.

Springfield Car Men Avert Strike

SPRINGFIELD, May 1.—No strike is to be called on the lines of the Springfield Street Railway Company today, according to an announcement made by John H. Reardon for the union. Mr. Reardon said that the Board of Trade had influenced this decision by offering at a meeting to endeavor to assist in settling the controversy.

Put on Corsets While Prostrate, Says Dr. Green

All these years girls, you have been putting on your corsets wrong!

Learn now, from a Mare Man, how to dress yourself.

Dr. Robert M. Green of the Boston City Hospital says you make a great mistake in standing up to do your morning lacing. He figures it out that you should lie on your back to get the proper shape.

His rules for corseting, as now promulgated through the Boston Medical and Surgical Journal, are:

1—The corset should be loosely applied while the patient is lying down with a small pillow under the hips, and none under the head. By this means gravity allows the viscera to assume approximately their normal position.

1—The garter straps should next be fastened to the stockings, to prevent the corset from sliding up during and after application. It is best that there should be three straps to each leg, one on the ventral, one on the lateral, and one on the dorsal aspect of each thigh.

3—The corset should now be laced from above upward, the lace being tied in three places, the first very tightly at the bottom, the second moderately at the centre, the third very loosely at the top of the corset. The lowermost laces should be at the level of the symphysis. A corset, thus applied, supports the viscera from below upward, so it does not permit them to sag toward the pelvis when the patient stands.

"All corsets," says the doctor, "may be roughly classified in two groups: those that lace only behind, and those that lace in front. The former are all bad."

He adds that the essentials of a good corset are:

1—It should lace in front.

2—Its lower border should come to the level of the trochanters (hip joint) and no lower.

3—Its upper border should not reach high enough to touch the breasts; it may be much lower.

4—It should be of a suitable size.

5—It should be as lightly boned as possible.

6—It should be equipped with garter straps.

BANDIT CHANGES PATRONS' BILLS

Police of Boston issue an hunting for a bandit who robbed Clara Wine Cleaners store at No. 54 Washington street, almost in Adams Square, entirely changing the face of the store's patronage. He entered the store after he had rifled the till. The desperado, who is known to the ladies clients with that of the burglar who also terrorized Cameron in the Back Bay, is described as a tall, dark Columbian accent.

The customers of the robber, who made his raid while the proprietor was busy with a number of people, all of the busiest moments of the night in the store, fear that police to be on the hunt for the recluse will be confessed to the robbery.

It was about 10:30 that Patrick H. Shea, a well-known resident of Dorchester, came to the store, walked up to a well dressed young man, about twenty-five years old, of dark complexion, wearing a dark suit with soft hat. The customer asked for a pint of brandy.

Shea got to him and took the dollar bill offered by the dark complexion. As Shea opened the cash drawer the customer leaned over the counter, speaking in low, sotto voice tones, emphasized with an automatic pistol.

DEMANDS THE CASH.

"Keep that register open," the bandit commanded. "I want all there is in it, and I want it quick." He leaned back a handkerchief, telling Shea to tie it around his head. Shea had just finished wrapping up the head stuff when a customer came in. The bandit turned his pistol to Shea, commanding the revolver to hold the latter in check, and kept on keeping the business end pointed at Shea.

"Wait on him," whispered the bandit, "and keep in mind that at the least sign to the police I'll shoot."

The first customer made several purchases and tendered a $10 bill in payment. The bandit, watching from the handle, commanding the change. The rumor that the bandit found the change in the cash drawer.

MAKES CHANGE FOR PATRONS.

"What is it? A ten-spot the bandit asked. "I can change it." And he made the change, keeping the revolver in a side pocket, ready for instant use.

Other customers came in. Shea waited on them always under the eye of the bandit. When another customer, with a five dollar bill, wanted change, again the bandit found the change in the cash drawer, put it in his own pocket, and closed the transaction.

For half an hour Shea awaited bloodshed. Then, nothing for a chance to escape the gaze of the bandit, Shea ran out, calling to the police. Several officers were near to give the alarm. Never did he have a chance.

Finally, at 11 o'clock the bandit announced it was about time to close up, and with the pistol still in his hand. He then made Shea open the trap door and go into the cellar.

A moment afterward Shea heard the front door close again and he rushed up to the police, who responded to the call.

The bandit had escaped almost the entire police force, including the motor police, and the officers who arrived while he was in the store.

NEW YORK, May 1.—For half an hour after the close of a meeting of the executive committee of the National Negro Business League, at which Secretary of State Bryan was the principal speaker, at a table meeting place. The chairman announced that the pledge had been signed was by Booker T. Washington, president of the league; Emmett J. Scott, secretary to Washington and the greatest manufacturer in the South has been in the pledge.

I. L. G. W. U. Strike Settled by Filene

A strike of forty men and women of the International Ladies Garment Workers Union has been settled by William Filene Sons Co., it was announced yesterday. The terms of the settlement, which ended the strike of the employees, include a request for a minimum of the protocol drawn up between the union and the firm, returned to work immediately.

ARREST 'BARONET' FOR MAIL FRAUD

Sir Henry L. Stirling," the dashing Englishman who captured all hearts at the Boston immigration station last February when he arrived on the ship Saxe Frotorian with a Scotch lassie, whom he said he had won after a journey of 12,000 miles to find the original of a photograph, is under arrest in New York charged with misuse of the United States mail to defraud.

Postoffice inspectors who arrested him claim that he has admitted to them that the story of his romance was mostly invention. Quite as mythical is that of sergeant, a post he is said to have confessed he deserted, absconding with $2,700 of his regiment's funds.

Sir Henry Stirling, Bart., K. C. M. G.," as he called himself, to really Isaacs Carlton Carlyle, absconding non-sergeant of the Forty-sixth and Forty-seventh Brigades of the Royal Field and Horse Artillery. He told the inspectors that he is a bigamist and expressed the fear that when the United States is through with him he will be sent back to England to be shot as a deserter in war time. He is charged in New York with taking money from young women on a promise of engaging them as a travelling companion and companion as an English nobleman's wife.

The arrival in Boston, he declared that a friend had shown him the photo of the pretty Scotch girl when he was in Australia. He called the picture, he said, traveled all the way to Scotland, found the original and made his suit known to the lassie, with the picture as his only introduction. They were married and came to this country on their honeymoon trip to Maine, the Scotch girl believed she was becoming Lady Stirling, he declared.

Merkle Is Lost to Giants Two Months

NEW YORK, May 1.—Fred Merkle, the Giants' first sacker, whose left arm was dislocated in Thursday's stormy clash with the Braves, will not be able to play again for two months, officials of the club said today. Two orders were sent out Thursday may be able to go in today. One is Lobert, who was spiked at third base by Maranville; the other is Robertson, who was injured in some way—was bumped or fell—running the bases.

Fred Snodgrass, slated to take Merkle's place, has a wounded hand.

Orton to Quit Penn at End of Contract

PHILADELPHIA, May 1. — Dr. George Orton, track team coach and publicity man at the University of Pennsylvania, it became known today, would retire at the expiration of his contract. Dr. Orton said that, as his contract does not expire until the Summer of 1916, he had not resigned, but merely told the Pennsylvania officials that his services would not be available after that date, as he had decided to take up other work.

Senators Game Is Held Up

Wet Welcome for Visitors

By A. H. C. MITCHELL.

The Washingtons, who were stove league champions of the American League last year, arrived here today prepared to open a series against the Red Sox this afternoon, but they were forced to rest up, the game being called on account of cold weather and wet grounds.

Twelve months ago they came to town and I went up to see 'em. They had the 1915 pennant won. Nothing to it. It was all over but the shouting. The players had already invested their World's Series rake-off in farms. They gave me a passing nod. Some of them, like Griffith, whom I had known for years, condescended to shake hands in the weak and dispirited manner of a man who meets a has-been he feels is going to make a hard-luck touch.

My friends the newspaper men from Washington who accompanied the team—and every Washington newspaper was represented—were smoking large cigars. They smiled in a pitying way when I greeted them, as much as to say, "Sorry for you, old chap, that you have to write stuff about that bush league team you have here called the Red Sox."

I felt like the Three Little Maids from School in the presence of Pooh Bah, which is several degrees removed from six Buffalo nickels. It was all "Griff" and "Walter"—Griff this and Walter that.

Finally I grew faint and dizzy and tottered out on the sidewalk, where the cold east wind partially revived me. Was I in Boston, whose baseball teams have won more championships than can be counted on the fingers of both hands—more in fact, than the teams of any other city in the country—or was I dreaming! Or was it Washington that had won so many pennants that an adding machine was required to count 'em! My mind was confused. I did not recover for several days.

The series was played, and as I recall it the Senators had the better of it. They departed like a three-ring circus that had cleaned up all the money in a one-horse town.

Time wore on. At last at the close of the 1914 baseball season the Washingtons came to town again. No newspaper men accompanied them. They looked like a bankrupt minstrel show. They had no pep. The Red Sox played them because they had to, and on the final day of the season our boys, by putting a comedy team in the field—every man out of position—let the Senators beat them so they wouldn't finish at the foot of the first division.

I suppose the Washingtons have already won the 1916 pennant, and remembering the old experience I had twelve months ago, I hesitate about going up to the hotel and paying my respects.

Penn Coxswain, Ill, Wants to Steer Crew

PHILADELPHIA, May 1.—Ad Foster, coxswain of the Penn varsity crew, who was stricken with appendicitis yesterday, was reported today to be practically out of danger. He has had the ice treatment, since yesterday afternoon and Dr. Lonsdale, his physician, stated that he may allow him to sit up tomorrow morning. The plucky little fellow declares that he will go to Annapolis and guide the varsity boat.

FEDERALS MEET ON KAUFF CASE

WHAT LEADERS IN BASEBALL SAY

By BAN JOHNSON.

President of the American League

CHICAGO, Ill., May 1.—Kauff not eligible to play with any club in Organized Baseball. He should be returned at once to Brooklyn Federal League Club.

By JOHN K. TENER.

President of the National League.

NEW YORK, May 1.—Benny Kauff will not be permitted to play in the National League at this time nor at any other until his standing has been established beyond doubt.

By AUGUST HERRMANN.

Chairman of National Commission

CINCINNATI, May 1.—Am not ready to express opinion on Kauff matter until I have all the facts before me.

meeting and the executives of the eight clubs are expected to be on hand.

The Kauff case has brought matters to a head, and upon the decision of the National Commission upon Kauff's application for reinstatement rests the question of whether the war between the fighting leagues will be resumed with greater bitterness.

The latest move of the situation was made when Business Manager Dick Carroll, accompanied by a phalanx of scribes, called upon Kauff and proffered the recalcitrant player $192 which was due him according to the terms of his contract. This amount is the only sum of money owing to Kauff, the latter having drawn down $474.47, according to Carroll.

Kauff refused to accept the money and all hands then left his hostelry.

MAGNETS CONFER.

The National League held a star chamber conference at President Tener's office, presumably to discuss this startling case, but no news of what transpired was handed out for the benefit of the public.

The magnates that hurried into the executive chambers were Messrs. Ebbetts, Gaffney, Baker and Hempstead. The Giants' president did not stay long, but when he dashed out into a waiting auto he did not appear to be exactly delighted with what had happened.

If the Brooklyn Federals have a prior or binding contract with Kauff," said Secretary Foster of the Giants today, "we will withdraw all claim to the player. We do not want to be a party to the violation of any legal baseball contract with the Brooklyn Federals."

BAN JOHNSON'S VIEWS.

Ban Johnson gave out an interview in Chicago in which he remarked that the national commission will not even take the Kauff case under consideration. The "Czar" contends that Kauff is an out-and-out outlaw.

August Herrmann, another member of the commission, would not discuss the case except to say that Kauff's application had been received and probably would be acted upon today.

President Ward of the Brooklyn club intimated that when the matter is threshed out, the Giants will not attempt to hold Kauff to any contract he may have signed with them. Ward bases his conclusions on the ground that when Rube Marquard signed with his club he was allowed to return to the Giants for the asking. He further showed that Marquard was not really a free agent.

Again, when Bill James of the Braves wanted to join the Brookfeds Mr. Ward refused to do any business with him when it was shown that the tall pitcher was the real property of the Boston Club. Irrespective of any step decided upon today by the Federal League no real action can be taken until the National Commission passes upon Kauff's application for reinstatement.

'HAM' FISH MAY COACH COLUMBIA

NEW YORK, May 1.—The head coach of the Columbia varsity football team may be none other than Hamilton Fish, Jr., formerly captain and star guard of the Harvard gridiron team, according to reports about the Morningside Heights campus today.

Graduate Manager Harry A. Fisher would not deny that an attempt was being made to obtain a man who has learned football under Percy Haughton, and intimated that "Ham" Fish would receive preference.

Fisher said that the one big obstacle in the way was the proviso that insists that the coach belong to the department of physical education. The former Crimson star is now a member of the State Legislature and might not want to sever his connections absolutely with political affairs in order to coach football at Columbia.

BRAVES CLASH WITH DODGERS

BROOKLYN, May 1.—The Boston Braves invaded this quiet little town early today and are ready for the series with the Dodgers. Manager Robertson feels that his players will be able to score at least two victories over the world's champions.

After the exhibition of baseball that the Brooklyn team put up against Moran's shining Phillies, Robertson is satisfied that his players are in the same spirit today, and will be able to repeat.

Frank Bruggy, the big catcher who had been with the Braves so far this season, is not included in the roster here. Bruggy was given his release and will report at once to the Troy club of the New York State League.

Manager Stallings will probably start the game with Dick Rudolph in the points for the Braves, while Aitchison is slated to toe the mound for the Dodgers.

Brooklyn "fans" will get an opportunity of seeing three of their former members wearing Braves' uniforms. Red Smith, Dick Egan and Pat Ragon are the former Dodgers who will be on the diamond today.

RAGON WANTS TO PITCH.

This morning Ragon implored Stallings to allow him to pitch the opening game against his former team mates. The big twirler wants the chance of scoring his first win on the Braves and asks that the Miracle Man grant him this one favor.

Ragon is in fine form just at present and in the few morning practice sessions has warmed up in good style. It is Ragon's ambition to show Robertson that he made one big mistake by letting him go. The change is acknowledged by Ragon to be better by a big per cent., so he will have the support of some classy players to hold him in any game.

Heretofore the husky slab artist has been a member of a second division team and did not possess the confidence that he will naturally enjoy now that he is on the pay roll of the champs.

LUCK WILL BE BETTER.

Manager Stallings stated that Ragon will certainly oppose the Dodgers in at least one of the games here. Red Smith, who has been clouting the ball in great style, also is anxious to impress both local fandom and Manager Robertson that he made a mistake when he forced the injury to his leg. The Brooklyn players have not seen Smith in action since that time and when he makes his appearance today he is sure of a real Brooklyn reception.

The chances of Dick Egan getting into the games here are very slight from present indications, although, as Fitzpatrick is filling the shoes of Pat Ragon in very satisfactory manner, Stallings might strain a point, however, and send Egan in to show him off to the local "fans" with whom he is a big favorite.

2 Suburban Leagu Games Carded Today

Two games will be played in the Suburban League series today. Melrose High plays Everett High at Everett and Somerville High meets Medford at Medford. Jack Ross and "Tim" Bond will be the opposing pitchers at Everett. Medford has already defeated Malden and Everett in two league games and will send out their best this afternoon to down Somerville.

"Dom" Games Monday.

Harvard freshmen interdormitory baseball games will begin next Monday with a game between Smith and Gore Halls. The competition this Spring will be for a silver cup donated by Odin Roberts, '96.

CORNELL ENTERS BEST TEAM FOR TRACK MEET WITH HARVARD TO BE HELD NEXT SATURDAY

CURLEY TELLS WHY HAVANA SECURED BOUT FOR TITLE

This is the fifth story of a series on the "Inside Story of the Johnson-Willard Battle for the Heavyweight Title," written by Jack Curley, the man who arranged the big fight. In this article he tells of his arrival in Havana; his meeting Johnson and how he finally decided that Cuba was the proper spot to stage the fight. He also tells of the obstacles he was forced to overcome on the Big Island.

By JACK CURLEY,

Who Arranged the Johnson-Willard Match for the Heavyweight Championship of the World.

(Copyright, 1915, by Star Company.)

Before I go any further with my story I want to say that Mr. H. H. Frazee and Mr. L. Lawrence Weber, the financial backers of the fight, never wavered, never worried and never interfered with anything I did.

If eventually they should make a million dollars out of the venture I would feel that they were not half repaid for the explicit confidence that they held in me, even at times when things looked mighty shaky.

WEIGH UP MY STORY.

It was 11 a. m. when my boat was scheduled to leave New Orleans for Havana. At 3 o'clock in the afternoon we were still tied to the dock, loading cattle.

Finally an hour later we struck out. At 6 o'clock we reached the mouth of the Gulf, where we were forced to anchor all night on account of a storm that was raging outside the bay.

Sunday we sailed in a choppy sea, which continued for the next fifteen hours. Late Monday night, long after the port of Havana was closed, we anchored outside of Morro Castle.

There I received my first view and first impression of Cuba at about 2 a. m. and wondered what status Johnson's end of the Willard match had taken since my last communication from him before leaving El Paso. At 8 o'clock we docked and landed. I felt greatly relieved when reporters informed me that Johnson expected in the night before and was down to meet the Key West boat.

HE FEARED POLITICIANS.

In fact, the actual landing relieved me greatly, for I felt uneasy all the way to Havana for fear that the strong politicians to whom I was tipped off by a New York promoter some time back would be on hand to prevent me from landing.

After registering at a hotel I sent out a ballboy to hunt up Johnson's residence. While waiting for the return of the ballboy I went to work from him by telephone I went to the dining-room for my first "feed" ashore. Right in the middle of the meal I saw a dark cloud coming through the door —and once enough! It was the champ himself, attired in a light-checked, faultlessly tailor-made suit, with creases strong enough to split a shoulder. He made direct for my table.

Jack Kleigin accompanied Jack. I quickly finished my meal, then went outside to talk everything over with Johnson. He told me of all his movements since I had seen him in London, and said special stress on his show of good intention, telling me how he rushed his trip by chartering a sailboat from Barbadoes to Cuba so as to make connection with the Morro Castle for Mexico.

JOHNSON FEARED AUTHORITIES.

To any one who knows what a poor sailor Johnson is no further proof was necessary. He showed me letters and wires warning him to get out of Mexico, and then laid special stress on arguments that I offered, showing how he was to be smuggled into Juarez. When I reached points where I showed him convincing facts that he would rapidly be unmolested; in fact, when I firmly convinced him of this he brought out the new arrangement:

"How am I going to get out?"

"Johnson Willis gets out of power while I am in Juarez?"

These and many similar questions were absolutely unanswerable. On top of all this Johnson offered the argument that he could find for me absolute protection and a license to hold the match in Havana.

He even went so far as to offer to reduce his guarantee in case Havana should prove a "fiver." Within forty-eight hours of my arrival there I so notified Messrs. Frazee, Tom Jones and Willard, and launched the match for Havana.

MORE PARASITES IN CUBA.

Now some more of the parasite stuff. A certain man happened in New York, created a big notoriety, posed as a wonderful, powerful millionaire planter of Cuba, and made the rounds of the newspapers, loudly proclaiming that he was the "Daddy" of Cuba, and under no circumstances would he allow a white and black man to meet in combat.

This gentleman appeared on the scene in Havana shortly afterward and remained there up to the fight. Every time he felt it necessary for anyone remotely connected or employed by the Willard-Johnson promoters he would threaten to catch the next train down to the island and create a feeling among the planters that the fight would have to be stopped.

MET MANY FINE PLANTERS.

I met many prominent planters during my stay at Havana, found them all fine fellows, and I never found one that knew or ever heard of the man.

My next stumbling block, if it can be called by such a big name, was the editor of a Havana newspaper. Many newspaper editors would shudder to think what things can be done under the guise of being a newspaper editor. If Jesse James were alive and needed new pointers in the hold-up game, I would suggest sending him to Havana for lessons.

This man was delegated by a few enterprising business men of Havana a few months previous to come to New York and try to arrange a championship match to attract tourists to Havana. I met him in New York at the time, and so did Harry Pollok, manager of Freddie Welsh, but he left without hooking up a championship bout, because in terms for himself personally were too steep.

LOCAL PROMOTER INTERFERES.

In Havana he promoted an enclosure which seats from ten to twelve thousand persons, and he was made manager of it. He insisted that the Willard-Johnson fight would have to take place there or not at all. He wanted 35 per cent. of the gross receipts, and later asked for $10,000 for one afternoon's rental.

When I laughingly told him that I did not wish to buy the enclosure, but simply wished to know the rental of it for one afternoon, he reduced his demand to $7,500, which offer, of course, I refused. In fact, I told this promoter all along that his enclosure was not the place for the heavyweight championship fight on account of its construction.

The readers of this article will now understand why a newspaper in Havana either ignored or spoke unfavorably of the Willard-Johnson match and why so many false reports came from Havana that threw such uncertainty around the match.

(Mr. Curley's next article will be published in Monday's American.)

Expect New Motor-Cycle Records Today

New records are expected today at the second race meet of the season at the Readville Motor Park this afternoon. "Flying" Jack Yates of Lynn, equipped with a new machine, called his Tornado, will be an attraction which will be eagerly watched. A. Garlo of Westfield and Charles Burbank of New York, both of whom were unable to start last week, have arrived in town and will try for the "money." Lack of high speed machines has kept both of these stars out of competition last time. At the last meeting, several twenty-five miles an hour and over was attained. Since that time the track has been put in better condition. No rain will hamper the riders this time, as two carloads of calcium chloride have been sprinkled upon the track. This with the recent rains, will make the track capable of ninety miles an hour. "Mile-a-Minute" Smith, Donald Pope, Teddy Carroll of Springfield and all the rest of the local favorites will take a whack at the money. Besides the twenty-five mile events there will be five other amateur and professional attractions, the start of which will be at 2:30.

Standish Club Plays BrocktonTeamToday

The crack Standish club of Dorchester will clash with the Brockton team of the Old Colony League at Standish Field this afternoon at 3 o'clock.

Bert Weeden, the old New England League catcher, is managing the Brockton team and has a fast aggregation under his wing. Carroll Daly, formerly of the Southern League, is looking after the interests of the Standish club, which is considered one of the fastest semi-professional teams in New England.

Motor-Paced Stars in Big Revere Race

Leon Didier, Bobby Walthour and Elmer Collins have been signed for a twenty-five mile motor-paced race at Revere Beach Oval for next Saturday evening, May 15. Another feature will be a five-mile, motor-paced race between Vincenzo Madonini and Harold Rollins, the Everett favorite. This is the first time two separate motor-paced events have been scheduled. The regular list of amateur and professional sprint races will be run in between the feature events.

Lynn Club Releases Three New Players

Louis Pieper, manager of the Lynn team of the New England League has released Pitchers Charles Tweed and Fred Traub, and Lester Bangs, an infielder. Tweed was released to the Pittsburg Club, Fred Traub left for Lawrence and will try to catch on with the Lewiston club, and Bangs, it is said, will join Bert Weeden's Brockton Club in the Colonial League.

George Sisler May Join the Brownies

Branch Rickey, manager of the St. Louis Browns, is making an effort to have George Sisler, Akron, O., baseball star at Michigan, now the property of the Pittsburgh Federals, declared a free agent. Sisler is not desirous to play professional ball, but would do so if he could play with Rickey, his former baseball tutor.

Kirmayer, of Giants, Joins Kaysee Feds

NEW YORK, May 1.—Pitcher Kirmayer, of the Giants, has jumped to the Kansas City Federal League club. He had despaired of making the regular team under McGraw, and after getting paid off Tuesday he disappeared. He had talked of jumping to the Feds.

Pitcher Press has been shifted to the Jersey City club. Reed, the ex-Princeton crack, goes to the Troy, N. Y., club.

WHITE TO ARRIVE IN HUB MONDAY

By JACK CONWAY.

Charley White, Chicago's sensational boxer, who hopes to bring the lightweight championship back to the United States by defeating Freddy Welsh, will arrive in Boston late Monday afternoon. He may then take a light workout at one of the local gymnasiums so that he will be in the best of condition for his twelve-round bout with Eddie Murphy of South Boston, which is scheduled to be decided before the Atlas A. A. next Tuesday evening.

White has been training in Chicago for his tussle with Murphy. Charley Harris, White's manager, writes that his protege has not experienced the difficulty in reducing to 134 pounds, the weight for the match, and that he will enter the ring prepared to give a grand account of himself.

There are few real lightweights in the country. The majority of the young men who are parading around the country posing as lightweights are really welterweights and could not reduce to 133 pounds unless they had a few months' time, and even then, however, is able to make the lightweight limit without any trouble, as he proved on numerous occasions.

WHITE DEFEATED RITCHIE.

The bout next week has aroused a great deal of interest and a big crowd is expected to turn out to witness the festivities. There are few lightweights who are better known than White. He has been battling with the best men of his class for a number of years, but did not gain a great deal of fame until last May.

White was then matched to clash with Willie Ritchie in Milwaukee. He had previously beaten Ad Wolgast, but the majority of the Eastern experts did not believe that he would be able to dispose of Ritchie. White, however, surprised those followers of the ring sport and easily disposed of the Californian. He sent Ritchie off his feet in the early part of the contest, moved up rearing left and right hand smashes and almost landed a knockout blow. Ritchie himself admitted that White had followed up his advantage in the early rounds of the whirl that he would probably have won the lightweight championship.

White has since engaged in two bouts with Freddy Welsh. He has been one of the few American lightweights who have been able to make things interesting for the clever Englishman. White has been credited with newspaper decisions over Welsh, although some of the experts have called his contests with the champion draws.

MURPHY WORTHY OPPONENT.

White is not underestimating Eddie Murphy's ability and realizes that he will have to be at his best if he is to dispose of the South Boston boxer. The Chicago boxer has witnessed Murphy in a number of his bouts and knows that he possesses plenty of class.

Charley returned with the South Boston boxer when the latter was preparing for his matches in the West with Packey McFarland. Murphy did not experience much trouble in outpointing White at that time. White, of course, was then not the high-class performer that he is today.

Tom Richards May Succeed Withington

Thomas K. Richards is being prominently mentioned in Harvard athletic circles as likely to succeed Dr. Paul Withington as assistant graduate manager of the Harvard Athletic Association. Dr. Withington gives up his Harvard position in the course of the next few months to enter the Boston City Hospital in order to finish the finishing touches on his medical education and also prepare for practice. Fred Moore, graduate manager of athletics at Harvard, says that it is much too early to consider a successor to Dr. Withington and adds that if the former all-around varsity athlete decides to remain in the Harvard offices until the completion of the next football season in November it is likely that he would do without the services of an assistant during the greater part of the remainder of the college year.

"The Rabbit's" Column

By Walter J. Maranville

"SHORTSTOP OF THE BRAVES"

NEW YORK, May 1.—We open in Brooklyn this afternoon and hope to repeat the dose we administered to Robbie's boys when they played in Boston a couple of weeks ago.

We don't have to change hotels to play in Brooklyn. We simply go over from New York by the subway and tuba, drag at Ebbets' Field, go at 'em, and return to New York after the game.

Now that we are hitting the ball I am of the opinion that we will climb the ladder fast. You can't win without some hitting, no matter how good the pitchers work. As some of our best twirlers have been backward in getting into shape, our hitting will help a lot.

* * *

We will be back in Boston next Thursday for a long stay, during which we tackle the Western teams. The Cincinnati lads have been going pretty fast, but, if you remember, they were out in front at this time last season. Later they dropped to nothing. Will history repeat in their case?

* * *

One of the most closely watched players in the National League right now is Tommy Long, the Cardinals' recruit outfielder, who is being given a chance to make good. With the closing of the deals for Wingo and Perritt, Hug's chance of more outfield talent is ended. Long must develop if the club is to stand up. Dolan and Wilson are fair material, but neither is a world-beater or a breaker-up of games. It's up to Long to play that part if the Cards are to carry far in the pennant race.

In the opinion of both Buck Herzog and Miller Huggins, Long is big league stuff, needing very little polish to make him into a player who should hit at least .280, steal thirty-five bases and do some tolerable fielding.

Both of these good judges say that Long's fielding fault lies in a shaky clutch when taking flies over his head, especially when going down the field for them. Coming in on a ball, or going toward either side, Long seems perfectly satisfactory.

At bat both Buck and Hug declare that Long is one of the fastest men since Keeler's day, when it comes to outfooting infield hits. If a bounding ball takes two hops, that's plenty. Long seems to put on a final burst of speed just as he reaches first base and goes over the sack like a bullet.

* * *

He can steal bases, too, gets away with a neat lead on the pitcher, shows good racing form as he proceeds, and wiggles into second in a fashion that makes it hard to nip him. Apparently Long will build up his batting average mainly by beating out short infield taps, and yet in the minors he was supposed to be a distance driver of the Chief Wilson type.

* * *

"Nig" Clarke, former Nap, has been given his unconditional release by Harry Wolverton, manager of the San Francisco Seals. Clarke performed with San Francisco through the 1914 season, though he played second fiddle to Catcher Walter Schmidt, a brother of Charlie Schmidt, former Tiger backstop. In the general weeding out of 1914 models Clarke was one of the last that Wolverton let go.

Pitching a no-hit game on a Federal park must be some feat, if we are to figure from the batting averages. According to all inside dope, the Feds use a particularly lively ball, having one made to their special order for the purpose of boosting the batting and making the game fast. They succeed, if one may judge from the number of .300 hitters that the league carry—many of whom are considered themselves lucky when in O. K. to get out-side the .250 mark. Also they have short outfield fences which enable ordinary flies to a certain direction to become home runs.

Captain "Jack" Hardwick will lead his first varsity team on the field this afternoon, when Harvard tackles Amherst at Soldiers Field. Hardwick, elected captain yesterday, should prove an ideal leader for the Crimson, for he is full of fight and as the present Harvard team has failed to display the slightest amount of belligerent spirit, it needs just such a man as Hardwick at its head.

Walter Garrett looks to be Dr. Sexton's logical choice for mound duty. The former Volkmann boy has been going along very nicely this season, and the remarkable game he twirled against the Catholic University last week in Washington stamped him as a real box artist. Dick Harte, who did such sensational work with the stick in the game against Virginia, will do the receiving, while Eddie Mahan will be seen in centre field.

Frank Fripp has taken a wonderful brace in his all-around work and if he can hold to his present clip he will be a fine asset to the 1915 Harvard team. "Mickie" Reed is causing a whole lot of worry because of his extremely weak hitting. The little shortstop is a fast and natural fielder and during the early weeks of the season did good work with the bat, but since the team started on the southern trip Reed appears to have forgotten all he knows about the art of hitting.

As a whole the Amherst team is a very weak aggregation and ordinarily the Harvard experience very little difficulty scoring a win.

However, Amherst is fortunate enough to have a first-class pitcher in Robinson, and the star twirler has been saved by the up-state college for Harvard.

Baseball Stars to Help Track Team

Captain Tacks Hardwick and Charley Brickley of the Harvard ball team are entering into the breach to help bring a track victory over Yale. Both boys are entered into the Cornell meet in the shotput, and Brickley had a short tryout in the Stadium under the watchful eye of Coach J. Fred Powers. Neither lad, however, is expected to compete against Cornell next Saturday as the nine plays Holy Cross at Worcester on that day. The dope of the Yale carnival is May 15, which is an open date for Coach Sexton's charges, so that it is doubtful if Brickley and Hardwick will be safely ensconced in the right field dugout when Harvard that day for the annual Harvard track engagement against Old Ell.

Court Battle on to Import Fight Pictures to U. S.

NEW YORK, May 1.—The first round in the battle begun by L. Lawrence Weber of New York to prevent the United States government from interfering with him bringing in this country to be exhibited by him pictures of the Johnson-Willard fight at Havana, has been fought before Judge Thomas G. Haight in the Federal Court at Newark.

Mr. Weber's attorney stated that the matter before the court was an application for injunctive to restrain the custom authorities from interfering with the entry into the Port of Newark of certain photo films of the pugilistic encounter.

Judge Haight told counsel to file briefs, which they did at once, and he stated that in the event of an injunction being granted he would insist that the complainants use every effort to facilitate matters for a hearing on appeal. They agreed to do anything the court would stipulate. He then announced he will take the matter up next Tuesday.

Boston Gunners Lose Match to N. Y. A. C.

NEW YORK, May 1.—The gunners of the Boston Athletic Association were defeated by the New York A. C. in the 200 "bird" event at the amateur championships of America tournament which started at Travers Island traps. The local gunners scored 1,733 while Boston broke 1,694.

Andover Track Men Clash with Harvard Cubs

Harvard freshmen and Andover meet this afternoon on the Academy athletic field in their annual track carnival. The Crimson youngsters expect to give their prep school rivals a hard fight for honors, but Captain Lincoln Prescott of Andover is confident that his mates, despite the absence of the boys on probation, will bring home the bacon.

The entries:

100-yard dash—C. Burrill, Jesse A. Dyer, Andover; W. Moore, E. E. Silver, Harvard.

Quarter-mile run—Jesse A. Dyer, Andover; E. E. Silver, G. W. Mersin, Harvard.

440-yard run—James Smith, Robert L. Ireland, Charles B. Beck, Andover; V. F. Likens, D. M. Little, Harvard.

880-yard run—J. F. Charlton, W. S. Moore, Andover; C. Goodall, J. R. Cooper, H. S. Erickson, T. R. Moore, Harvard.

One-mile run—J. Brown, G. C. McCarter, Irving G. Hopkins, Andover; G. W. W. P. Hoffman, Hollis, L. Bowditch, Harvard.

School Crews in First Races Today

Schoolboy oarsmen will have their first races of the season on the Charles today, Cambridge and Nichols rows the Cambridge Latin four at 2 o'clock, starting from the Cottage Farm Bridge. Noble & Greenough will row a graduate crew of Harvard an hour after the first race.

CORNELL SENDS BEST FOR GAMES

Coach Jack Moakley of the Cornell track team has forwarded his entries for the annual dual meet with Harvard which will be staged in the Harvard Stadium next Saturday. The Ithaca pack will probably strike here on Thursday headed by Graduate Manager G. E. Boyd.

Cornell defeated Harvard handily at Ithaca last Spring and will probably repeat the dose on the home soil of Cambridge, as the Ithacans are reported as having one of the strongest and best balanced track teams in their history. Their special forte will be in the field events with Captain Mercelliott, the clever weight thrower, and Captain Bob Simpson, the hitherto, the clever all-around field event star. From the track side on the two-mile runs, Cornell should shine. Harvard's strength will be in the sprints, quarter mile and half mile, Ingersoll the Cornell dash man will figure heavily in the outcome of the games.

Warren Wins His Game.

Warren played startling billiards in the fifteenth game of the New England three-cushion championship series when he defeated Carroll 50 points to 44 in several innings. No time was wasted by either of the players in safety play, the match being the fastest of any of those already staged.

The Latest Paris Hats

Republished by Special Arrangement with HARPER'S BAZAR, the Oldest and Greatest Woman's Magazine

The Hats of the Hour in Paris—here they are. Maria Guy, the famous milliner, has selected her latest creations to be shown exclusively in Harper's Bazar and has posed them on the Woman of the Hour, the beautiful Forzanc.

THROUGH a veil darkly—a tete de negre tulle curtain—one sees the glorious eyes of Forzanc, season's toque she poses them to give the effect of while the entire flesh-colored straw hat is clouded in a mass of the illusion.

WHEN Maria Guy uses wings as trimming this height rather than of width, just as she has arranged the white wings on this toque.

The "Know-It-All"

THE only people who are deluded into the belief that they know it all are those who know very little. The only people who learn nothing as they proceed onward through life are those who are sure that they have nothing to learn. If Michelangelo were to come back to earth, he would be willing to learn a bit about color from a poster artist and a bit about sculpture from a medalist in the sand at the seashore and a bit about line from a newspaper cartoonist. But if all three of these knew little enough they would know also too little to learn anything from Michelangelo!

The courage to say, "I don't know" or "I never heard of that" or "I don't understand that" never brought down scorn upon your head if it was addressed to intelligent people. Children learn by asking questions. Education is more than drawing out what you have it in you to become. It is giving you knowledge and information on which to react. And education does not stop with school or book-training. Every day of life ought to educate you and leave you wiser than yesterday found you.

Know-it-all people, who sit back with an air of profound wisdom and smile superiorly upon the questionings and questings of other folks are sooner or later revealed as the bluffs they are in truth.

Knowing it all is one of the many forms of ignorant self-satisfaction that is as maddening to the nervous and so pathetic to the sane. It stands the door of wisdom fairly in the face of its sad and foolish possessor. It is made of pairs of smug conceit that is as full as it is with its own shortcomings. The part foolish girls who cannot bring itself to confess to any lack of knowledge and one part fear of ridicule.

Now, truly wise and well educated people will only respect your desire to know. They know that when you confess "I don't know" you fairly request "Inform me." They know that in acknowledging your lack of information on a subject you are on the road to collecting knowledge about it. They don't patronize you—they will tell you what they can and feel that the thing about which you ask enlightenment is simply out of your line and that you have probably the habit of collecting useful information and so may be well versed in other departments of life.

Of all the absurd weaknesses of human nature none seems to resent so pathetically inexcusable than pretending to know what you don't or dreaming that you just naturally are wise enough to know about everything without study. If you could swim you would not merrily plunge into a mountain lake without ascertaining whether it sheered from the shore at a depth of five feet—or a hundred.

Why plunge with equal boldness and undisguised stupidity into the waters of life? Why take it for granted that wisdom has come to you ready made? Why not acknowledge the superiority of each specialist you meet in his own department? Why not try to learn by humility?

Here is an old rhyme I think it would be well for all of us to learn:

Who knows and knows he knows is wise. Cleave thou to him
And evermore forsake him.
Who knows and knows not that he knows—he sleeps
Go thou to him and wake him.

Who knoweth not and knows he knoweth not is a child.
Teach thou to him and teach him.
Who knoweth not and knows not that he knoweth not is a fool—
No light shall ever reach him.

Most of us are children in knowledge. We ought to ask questions. We ought to seek enlightenment in humility. The wise will give it to us gladly—and welcome us to their company in respect for our longing to know and see and understand. Don't be silly enough to think that you can't—for thus indeed you will shut yourself off forever from light.

Aged, Wrinkled Faces Easily Rejuvenated

An aged face is often only a mask to a comparatively youthful person. Beneath is a complexion young and fair to look upon. It's a simple matter to remove the mask. Ordinary unmodified wax, to be had at any druggists, gradually absorbs the worn-out surface skin; in a week or two the new fair face has the loveliest glory of complexion imaginable. An ounce of the wax usually is sufficient to complete the transformation. It is put on at night like cold cream and taken off in the morning with warm water.

This remarkable treatment is invariably effective, no matter [illegible] caused the complexion, liver spots, [illegible] cheeks and other extraneous blemishes [illegible] discarded skin.

To remove [illegible] cannot be too [illegible] candelilla, 1 oz.; [illegible] Use as a wash [illegible] be wonderfully [illegible]

There are in Russia, 6,189,401 Jews, very nearly half of the total number in the world, which is estimated at 10,145,879; the next greatest number is in Austro-Hungary, 1,994,372, and the third greatest is in the United States, 1,136,340.

In 1911 the British Empire produced 69,497 tons of tin and foreign countries 54,051 tons. First place is taken by the Malay States with 31,126 tons, followed by the Dutch East Indies with 12,369 tons.

ZOE

(By CORALIE STANTON and HEATH HOSKEN).

He expected almost anything but then. Nothing would have surprised him. To come face to face with Godfrey Brooke and know the worst had happened seemed the inevitable sequence to this day of torture, this one long phantasmagoria of emotions.

He turned instinctively toward home and walked swiftly in the direction of Piccadilly, oblivious of everything—cutting friends and acquaintances wholesale.

Dimly somewhere at the back of his brain, he remembered that Zoe would be at the studio at four, that she and Brooke were lunching at the Savoy, and that he had an appointment in the city in reference to some African concessions later in the day. In his overwrought imagination he pictured clairvoyantly exactly what would happen.

After lunch Brooke would go West with his wife to buy her a present—a hat or something that is supposed equally to please a wife. They would find themselves in Bond street. Brooke would inevitably remember "Circe" and the story of Zoe. He would see that absurd flag hanging from the Leveredge gallery.

What would be more natural than that he should go and see the picture?

He imagined the worst, working himself into a fever of suspense. He pictured everything. Zoe would do her best to dissuade him, of course. If only he could really rely on Zoe! But, in all probability, Brooke would take the opportunity of visiting the Leveredge gallery by himself. Of course he would. He was the sort of man who would not consider "Circe" a proper picture for his wife to see. He was very old-fashioned in his ideas of women. He would absorb them, shut them up in gilded cages, and worship them as being far above him. That was the terrible part of it.

Before Crawley had reached the Piccadilly corner of Bond street he was firmly convinced that it was useless to fight against Fate, and that the sooner he folded his arms in resignation and awaited the final and inevitable catastrophe, the better.

Then it was that the very last thing he had expected happened, and had his mind been otherwise occupied, it would have been the most expected.

A shrill, girlish voice broke into his maddening thoughts. He was dimly conscious of hearing his name called three or four times before, with a start, he pulled up sharp and swung round.

"Noel! Mr. Crawley! Noel!"

An exceedingly pretty girl, smothered in a heavy motor coat, was standing up in a smart landaulet, which was drawn up by the curb, and was endeavoring in quite unconventional, almost boyish manner, to attract his attention.

It was Eva Warren, his fiancee. Mechanically he raised his hat. He looked dazed. For the moment he hardly knew what he was doing or saying.

"Why, whatever is the matter, Noel?" she laughed. "Are you asleep or deaf or what? I think every one must have thought me mad, shouting after you."

"I'm so sorry," he muttered in a hoarse, thick voice. "I—I was thinking of—"

"Thinking of committing suicide, by the tragic expression on your face," she interrupted. "But tell me, dear"—her pretty, vivacious voice sank almost to a whisper—"how are you? Nothing's wrong—eh?"

"Wrong? Why, of course not!" he replied, with well-affected boisterousness. "What an idea!"

The girl's charming face flushed; her dark-blue eyes lit up as they gazed inquiringly into his.

"Oh, Noel," she said, in a voice that rose barely above a whisper, "I am so glad!"

"Glad?" he queried vaguely. It seemed impossible that anyone could be glad about anything just now.

"Why, at meeting you. Aren't you? Haven't you got one word to say to me?" She pouted like a disappointed child, and, indeed, she was little more than a child.

"Of course I'm glad!" the man exclaimed bravely. "Are you alone?"

"No. Father's in there, buying a new hat or something. He'll be out in a minute." She glanced in the direction of the hatter, outside whose shop the motor-car stood. "By the way, we were just going round to your place to know if you'd come round to us this afternoon. You don't leave for Paris till nine, do you?"

"Paris!" The man stared blankly. He had forgotten all about Paris. "Oh, yes, of course!" he blundered on. "No, I don't leave till the night train, but—"

"There are no 'buts,' sir!" she laughed. "Come in and sit down, and let's have a chat before the pater comes. He'll be delighted."

"But I—I really can't," stammered Crawley. "I'm in a terrible hurry as it is. I've got a most important appointment."

"Then just forget it," she interrupted with playful imperiousness. "Appointment! When I want you? Pshaw! Noel, what has come over you?"

Eva Warren pouted again, and there was a suspicion of tears in her cornflower-blue eyes, a quivering of her lovely cherub lips.

"I—I thought perhaps," she said, and her voice had grown dignified, "that perhaps—perhaps you'd come with father and me to the Leveredge gallery and soon us the picture. We were just going there."

The man winced as if some one had struck him with a whip.

"You don't want to see that," he said steadily.

"Oh, but I'm just dying to!" she said enthusiastically. "Every one is talking about it. They say it's wonderful! Oh, Noel, and I am so glad, so proud!"

Proud! Proud of him, the most abjectly miserable creature on the face of God's earth. Oh, it was unbearable and hopeless! And she was proud of him!

Never so poignantly before had he realized what the danger that surrounded him meant to his personality. The loss of Eva. How he loved her! What a revelation her coming, like a blithe little fairy, had made of his life!

"I am sorry, Eva," he forced himself to say, "but I must go! It is really important—a matter of business of vital moment. Oh, please understand"—

"Hullo, Noel, my boy!" A heavy hand descended upon the artist's shoulder. "The very man we were talking about five minutes ago, isn't it, Eva?"

Crawley swung round and faced Sir Squire Warren, a lean, small-built, dapper little man with a striking face—a man close on fifty.

"How are you, sir?" he blurted out. The baronet gripped the young man's hand in a vise.

"Looking a bit off color, my boy," he said. "Jump in and take us to see your masterpiece, Eva's just rampant to see your 'Circe.' In you get!" He opened the door of the landaulet, but Crawley drew back.

"I'm awfully sorry, sir," he said, with ill-concealed embarrassment, "but I'm overdue with a most important appointment, and"—

"Oh, bless my soul, then don't let us keep you!" exclaimed Sir Squire, to whom appointments were the most sacred things in life.

Crawley was desperate; he seized the opportunity. With renewed apologies he left them, sending his love to Lady Warren and his regrets at being unable to accept their kind invitation for the afternoon.

(To Be Continued Monday.)

Crawley Meets Eva at an Inopportune Moment

Eva was signalling to him. He stopped to greet her.

Inhuman Monster!

A suspicious rattle, as of crockery in contact with crockery, had awakened Mrs. Cook.

"George—George," she whispered under her breath, "wake up quick. There must be burglars in the house eating all the cakes I have just made for your birthday!"

For a moment George's face assumed an awed expression, then, evidently assured as to his safety, he settled down again.

"Let 'em!" he muttered. "What does it matter to us anyway, as long as they don't die in the house!"

Their Married Life

Helen Takes Her Mother to a Play and the Elder Lady Doesn't Enthuse

Copyright, 1915, by International News Service

"I THINK it's awfully warm, I don't know what you think about it," said Helen languidly, as she and her mother came out of the large department store and walked slowly up the street. "I don't feel like looking any further just now, mother, let's go in somewhere and have lunch, then we can look again afterward."

"All right," consented her mother, "although I'd feel better about it if we got it settled first. Here's some in this window, shall we go in here?"

Helen was on the point of answering that any old place would suit her that had risen to her lips and followed her mother meekly into the store where the taffeta had been displayed in the windows. It seemed to Helen as though they had visited fifty places to match the piece of black taffeta that her mother had insisted upon getting.

Helen thought herself that the silk could have been matched nevertheless at several other places, but her mother insisted that the various shades of black than of any color, so they had persisted. Helen, who was a very ardent shopper, had drooped considerably since they had started.

Her veil had come off in the driving to fix it she had pulled her hair down at the side. She was afraid that she was not looking her best and the fact made her feel more cross. She glanced at the silk that they had brought out listlessly and without interest, and was half surprised to hear that her mother had at last several yards measured off and the package had been delivered and they were moving toward the counter.

"Are you ready to go somewhere now?" she asked again, and her voice sounded gentility as they started toward the elevator.

HER MOTHER FINDS IT REALLY ENJOYABLE

"We might as well have it right here," said Helen, somewhat brighter at the prospect of something to eat and some rest. In the rest room she took off her hat and brushed up her hair as well as she could. By the time they were seated in the restaurant and she had ordered iced coffee with some other things, she felt almost gracious.

Her mother was frankly enjoying herself. The trip through the different stores had not tired her in the least, and there was a faint color in her cheeks.

"I declare, mother," said Helen amiably, "you look the younger of the two. Why, you actually look as if you had enjoyed the morning."

"I have," said her mother, turning to Helen and smiling, "and I have tired you out completely. I'm sorry, dear, it won't happen again."

"Nonsense," said Helen reassuringly, "just as if I didn't love to help you get things. I didn't mean to say that right, that's all. The coffee will brace you up. You'll see."

They lingered over the meal a long time. Their table was near a window, and the wind stirred the curtains lazily with a little vagrant breeze that was almost hot and yet refreshing.

"This is warm weather for this time of the year," said Helen finally as she poured out the iced coffee and listened to the gems from one of the successful musical comedies that the orchestra was playing. "I'll tell you what we'll do this afternoon, mother. The things that you're going to buy are not important and can wait, and you and I will go to a matinee."

"Oh, no, Helen, what makes you spend the money," the older woman protested.

"But I want to. I hated to leave you home the other evening and I want you to see a couple of good plays before you go back."

They rose as the girl brought Helen her change and walked out of the room slowly. Helen looked at her watch as they got into the elevator and saw that they had just time to walk up to the theatre.

"Is there anything particular that you would like to see," she said, turning to her mother, who looked puzzled.

"No, dear, you know best about that. Whatever you like I'd like, excepting those silly musical shows."

SHE TAKES HER TO SEE A MODERN PLAY

Helen thought Warren hated musical shows, too, and she herself preferred a drama of some kind. She had an idea that her mother would like a farce, and as she ran over the different plays in her mind the idea occurred to her to buy seats for a play that she had wanted to see all Winter. She had read the book and although it was a little too heavy for what she had thought in the first place, still she would like very much to see it staged.

She knew Warren would refuse to buy seats for it, and this was a good chance to see it if she were going to, without any more thought on the subject, Helen walked into the lobby and bought seats for the play she had wanted to see.

Her mother becomes engrossed in her program and examined it minutely. Helen thought, with a little twinge of conscience, that her mother might disapprove of a play of this kind, but she salved her conscience with the thought that she might take her to see something else later.

The curtain went up and the play began. Helen was intensely interested, and, at the close of the first act, turned to her mother impulsively to ask how she liked it.

"I like it, pretty well," the other woman vouchsafed, but was very quiet, nevertheless. At the end of the second act she did not speak to Helen, and Helen, vaguely uncomfortable, hardly knew what to offer in the way of conversation. The play dragged through four acts, which Helen hardly enjoyed because of her mother's face. At the close of the performance she helped her mother into her coat and asked, haltingly, if she had liked it.

Her mother was frankly shocked, and said so.

"Why, they never used to play things like that," she said as they mingled with the crowd streaming out of the theatre. "It leaves a bad taste in my mouth."

Helen laughed at her way of putting it, but thought, after all, that it was quite to the point.

"Never mind, we'll see something better next time," she said, comfortingly. "Something lighter than this. I might have known that you wouldn't like it."

Flanking the group of exhibit palaces upon the west, is the Palace of Fine Arts, bordered by flowers, shrubbery and trees, giving the effect of a forest lake in the tropics by its lagoon. The building and its colonnades describe an arc 500 feet in length. The palace covers five acres and is of steel and concrete and fire and burglar proof.

Watch for the Big 10-Vote Coupon in Tomorrow's Sunday American

VOTE STANDING TO BE PUBLISHED SOON

Many of the candidates in the American's California Tours Contest are very anxious to learn when the first vote standing will be published. The Contest Manager is able to make this announcement today.

A vote standing of all candidates, showing the relative position of each, will appear in the Sunday American just as soon as possible after the Series "B" votes have been counted, tabulated and checked.

This vote standing will include all votes polled in Series "A" and Series "B" up to and including Monday, May 3.

From letters sent in by various candidates, it is evident to the Contest Manager that many of the candidates are making a very grave mistake in slowing down on their coupon gathering efforts until the first vote standing is printed. Nothing could be more unwise than to permit a single vote-gathering day to go by without exerting every possible effort to collect every last coupon.

Absolutely the very best way in a contest of this kind is to entirely ignore your opponents and do your level best to pile up a big vote total. What does it matter what "the other fellow" may have? He may lead you today and tomorrow—he may lose his courage and drop out of the race.

A competition of this sort is a real test of character, courage and endurance. Those who permit themselves to become discouraged at every slight advantage gained by a competitor really have no place in any race where it is a question of "the survival of the fittest."

The twenty-five American readers who are going to be successful in winning these splendid tours will be the ones who have paid no attention to idle chatter, to extravagant claims made by opponents, to the thousand and one little annoying rumors ever present in a battle of any sort. They will be the ones who MAKE EACH DAY COUNT, who hew close to the line and each day try to make a better vote showing than on the preceding day. And above all—the thing that will win will be the "never say die" spirit.

It was not the intention of the Contest Manager to print the vote standing for some time to come, but since some of the contestants seem to wait it—they shall have it.

There is no competition so severe as that in the world of business, and if you will but look around you at the successful business men in your neighborhood, you will find that they are leaders in the business race because they have tended strictly to their own business and did not spend their time worrying about what their competitors were doing.

There is a lesson in this for any candidate who has made the mistake of drifting along waiting for a vote standing to see what some other competitor's vote standing will be.

Get ready, candidates, for the big 10-vote coupon to appear in tomorrow's Sunday American, as well as another complete page of photographs.

REMEMBER, YOU HAVE UNTIL 5 P. M. ON NEXT MONDAY, MAY 3, IN WHICH TO SEND OR MAIL THE SERIES "B" COUPONS TO THE CONTEST MANAGER, NO. 5 WINTHROP SQUARE.

CANDIDATES! Caution! If any newsboy or newsdealer sells or attempts to sell a copy of the Boston Daily or Sunday AMERICAN, with the Voting Coupon cut out or missing, please report the fact at once to the Contest Manager, Main 5180. Every copy of the Daily and Sunday AMERICAN from now on, to and including July 3, will contain a Voting Coupon and candidates and their friends should insist upon receiving an entire paper. Candidates should instruct their friends to examine Page 2 of the paper, both Daily and Sunday, before accepting same if any newsboy or newsdealer. If the coupon is missing, go to this office at once. Look for the coupon in each copy before purchase before you accept same.

MISS ANNA JUDKINS of No. 47 Hinkley street, Somerville, a candidate in the AMERICAN'S great California Tours Contest.

10-VOTE COUPON GIVEN TOMORROW

Just a few reminders for candidates in the AMERICAN'S California Tours Contest:

Watch for the big ten-vote coupon tomorrow.

Another complete page of candidates' photographs tomorrow. See if yours is among them.

All Series "B" votes must be delivered or in the mail by 5 o'clock p. m. Monday, May 3.

The vote standing of all candidates for Series "A" and Series "B" will be printed in the Sunday AMERICAN as soon as possible after the votes in these two series have been counted, tabulated and checked.

Some Advice to the Boston Elevated

Sometimes an outsider, having a better perspective, can obtain a clearer view of a situation than those most interested and involved in it. For that reason the AMERICAN ventures to give the officials of the Boston Elevated some advice concerning the attitude which their public service corporation ought to take on matters now pressing for adjustment.

While the officials of the Elevated have not formally requested an increase of fares, the public utterance of Chairman Macleod of the Public Service Commission and other infallible signs make it clear that the Boston Elevated would gladly accept and probably intends to ask for an increase of revenue through some kind of increased charges for its service. The localities affected are insisting upon the construction of a subway station at Arlington street and the removal of the elevated structures in Charlestown and on Castle street, Boston. There is strong local justification for the demands the public is making upon the Elevated Railroad in these matters, and the demand for better service will constantly grow as it ought to grow in any thriving and progressive community. Increase of business which follows the growth of a city ordinarily means increase of net revenues, which enables our public service corporations to increase their service or to decrease their fares.

The people of Boston have for a long time regarded the claims of poverty with which the Elevated has resisted public demands calling for increased expenditures by the Elevated with considerable skepticism. The people of Boston remember that for a year after the Elevated leased the West End, and before its elevated structure was completed and before a single car was run or a single carfare collected, the Boston Elevated not only paid 8 per cent. dividends on the stock of the West End, but 6 per cent. in addition upon its own large capitalization when it had not earned a dollar. This 6 per cent., paid to the stockholders of the Boston Elevated before that corporation had operated a car, was simply the cream skimmed off the profits of the West End Street Railway, which that corporation had apparently been concealing from the public. Now after all these years since the Elevated Railroad has been running and traffic has increased and rapid transit has developed wonderfully, the burden seems to be upon the Elevated to show why its net revenues have not only decreased, but have not actually INCREASED.

The Boston public is always fair to a public service corporation. Everybody knows that a public service corporation must pay a reasonable profit upon the money invested in the business. Nobody denies it. And demands would not be made upon the Boston Elevated which are known to trench upon the reasonable profits of a quasi public enterprise.

The difficulty lies in the fact that the public does not know when a demand for increased service would deprive the stockholders of a reasonable profit. They are asked to take the word of the corporation officials when the history of statements of public service corporation officials has not tended to increase their credibility.

All around the Boston Elevated are public service corporations whose expenditures have been admittedly not proper, and the losses from which admittedly ought to fall upon the stockholders and not upon the public. Experience with the New Haven, the Boston & Maine, with the Bay State and indeed with nearly all the public service corporations of the country has taught the public that they cannot rely implicitly upon the unsupported statements of the representatives of these corporations.

The history of the West End Street Railway itself, which forms the principal constituent of the Elevated system, makes the public skeptical of poverty pleas by the Elevated. When a corporation earns enough to pay 6 per cent. above the dividends which it is declaring to another corporation, immediately after it has been leased, it presents a rather sullen background to claims of poverty.

The AMERICAN is far from saying that the Elevated is a prosperous corporation today. It does not say that the difficulties which the Elevated is meeting, particularly in the Legislature, are the results of disinterested public demands. So far no Rationally legislation has not been the result of public insistence, but of another kind of demand, it is to the Elevated's great credit.

But until the Elevated makes a satisfactory explanation of its present financial condition and tells why it is not prospering today, in view of all the circumstances which ordinarily would spell "prosperity," it cannot expect the consideration which it ought to have from the public, if, in truth, it is not strong enough financially to stand the demands which are being constantly made by the public for more costly service.

The Terminal Problem Must Be Soundly Considered

It is a long step in the right direction and a great achievement in behalf of public ownership when men of the conservative financial stripe of those who recommend the plan suggested by Mr. Curley's advisors and submitted to the Legislature by Governor Walsh for the public ownership and operation of the terminal facilities of Metropolitan Boston recommend such a plan. When men like Mr. Eugene V. R. Thayer, president of the Merchants National Bank, one of the largest financial institutions in New England, and himself one of the wealthiest men in the nation, coming from an old New England family with which conservatism is almost a fetish, become convinced that it is better for the public than the railroads to control and operate the terminal facilities of transportation, it is very significant of the progress which public ownership is making among its natural opponents.

Let it be distinctly understood that the terminal facilities are the most difficult of all the railroad problems, the most complex, the most expensive. It is there that James J. Hill, the great railroad operator, has declared that the railroads of the country have broken down. It is there that the railroads of New England have ESPECIALLY failed.

Few people realize the completeness and the cost of the terminal failures of our railroads in Boston. These gentlemen are undoubtedly right in considering it a problem beyond the strength and capacity of the railroads themselves, and that under such circumstances the government should undertake the task.

The principle of this plan is sound. The AMERICAN heartily endorses it, but as the Governor cautioned the Legislature we must not [illegible] ourselves too readily to its details. It is a new problem [illegible] worked out carefully, and we must beware that this [illegible] of the Greeks bearing gifts in which the railroads [illegible] of the Greeks. The basis of value upon which it is [illegible]ay for the railroad property which must be taken o[illegible], under this plan, must be carefully scrutinized.

Making Over Wives and Husbands

"Which Has the Larger Influence, the Man or the Woman?" Asks Dorothy Dix

By DOROTHY DIX

ONE of the most interesting phases of the matrimonial problem, and one that no young couple in love ever stops to consider, is the influence that a husband and wife have upon each other's character and destiny. This is leaving out of the discussion all consideration of whether they will be congenial or not, or make each other happy or miserable, and dealing only with the bare fact of whether the stronger one will be able to lift the weaker one up, or the weaker will have dead weight enough to pull the higher down.

To a degree this question is a distinctly American one, since in other countries the man automatically settles the position of the family socially and lifts his wife to his rank. The barmaid, or the chorus girl, who marries an English duke becomes officially at once an aristocrat, entitled to precedence even over gentlewomen who have in their veins the blood of a thousand knights and a hundred generations of culture.

In America, however, where we have no hereditary aristocracy, and where everybody plays the game of life on their own account, no such rule prevails, and a man is far enough from being able to lift a woman up to his own grade of society by marrying her. Indeed, if there are any hereditary privileges in American society, the succession goes through the feminine line, and while a woman may give her husband the entree into her inner circle, it is seldom that the man who marries beneath himself can open the doors of the exclusive set to which he belongs to his wife.

Not at All Strange

This is not strange, for the women in this country make and rule society. Men have neither time nor inclination to bother with making out the dinner list or the ball invitations. It is the wife who selects the guests who come to the house, and thus a man inevitably gravitates toward his wife's level of society instead of lifting her to his.

This is a serious matter and one well worth the careful consideration of the man who has fallen in love with some girl who is socially his inferior and whose family and friends grate upon his refined sensibilities. Of course he thinks that the beautiful Mary who has captured his fancy and who is surrounded by gum-chewing girl friends and flashy-looking boy friends, who call her "Mame," is a pearl among swine, and he flatters himself that it will be no trouble at all to pluck her out of her pinchbeck setting and put her into his own highly-polished circle.

But in this he is mistaken. She will not fit in; she will go back to her own, and he will find before he knows it that he has followed her. Socially, the wife makes the position, and what she is the husband becomes also.

Intellectually a woman has far greater influence over a husband than he has over her, because the woman makes the atmosphere of the home. If she is cultured she fills the house with books, papers, pictures, music, all the refinements of life, and she draws about her educated people, and, be the husband ever so uncultured himself, he unconsciously acquires a certain polish from his home life.

Must Seek Her Level

On the other hand, no matter how brilliant a man may be or how learned he cannot make a refined home if his wife is ignorant. She will regard the money that he spends on books as wasted, the learned friends he brings home as bores; she will yawn in his face when he tries to talk to her of literature or art, until, at last, in sheer despair, he will adopt his conversation to her own dull level of platitudes and gossip.

Why a woman should influence her husband morally more than he does her is inexplicable, but it is true. When a broad, generous-minded man marries a stingy and niggardly woman, he will narrow down to her far oftener than she will broaden out to him. If a refined man marries a coarse and vulgar woman, what is fine within him will grow coarse to sympathize with clay far oftener than she will spiritualize to meet him. It is one of the pathetic weaknesses of human nature that evil rules oftener than good, and that the nobler of a married couple is the one to give in.

It is often remarked that people who have been married a long time come to look like each other physically, and it is even more true that they come to be like each other spiritually. It is one of man's illusions that he will be able to make over the woman he marries to his own likeness, but in reality it is woman's hands that does the altering, and this makes it so important that a man should not choose as a wife a woman according to whose pattern he does not wish to be altered.

For when a woman gets done making over her husband, he is so changed that even his own mother doesn't know him.

Letters from American Readers

SAYS PROGRESSIVES SHOULD STAND BY PRINCIPLES.

Editor BOSTON AMERICAN:

Dear Sir—Why is the Republican party so anxious for the Progressives to return to the fold? How can any true Progressive ever return without a sacrifice of his principles? Has any true Progressive yet returned? Is it not safe to say that those who have returned were never in the party by virtue of principle?

The principle must triumph, whether the party does or not. Can such inducements as are offered by the Republican party have any salutary effect upon the true Progressive, such as "We were bad, come back and we will do better."

Are the Progressives so gullible as to accept at this late day that foolish argument? Will it not be better, for them to affiliate with the Democrats if they choose to mix at all? Haven't the planks of the Democratic party been more on progressive lines than the Republican?

The future prosperity of our country depends wholly upon the integrity and intellect of the voter. See to it, Mr. Voter, and do your duty. JAMES A. THOMAS

THE FIRST MUNICIPAL TUBERCULOSIS HOSPITAL.

Editor BOSTON AMERICAN:

Dear Sir—I noticed in yesterday's editorial the statement that Chicago recently announced with legitimate pride, "the dedication of the first municipal tuberculosis sanitarium of its kind in the world." This is not true. John F. Fitzgerald in his first term built the first municipal consumptive hospital in the world at Mattapan.

This institution has done wonderful work, and I hope you will send word to the Chicago papers that while Boston is proud that Chicago has built a tuberculosis hospital, that Boston, because of the humanity of John F. Fitzgerald, enjoyes the distinction of building the first municipal consumptive hospital in the world.

Very truly yours,
EDWARD C. McNULTY,
No. 51 Coolidge road,
Allston, April 29.

The Burlington House, They Tell Us, Is a Thing of the Past

Time Has Doubtless Brought Other Important Changes in the Beautiful City on the Shore of Champlain. Still, if Hooligan Ever DOES Get Married, and Persists in Spending the Honeymoon at "Boilington," We Presume the Party Can Be Taken Care of at the Van Ness, the Sherwood or the Hotel Vermont.

The price of the POPULAR monthly magazines is fifteen cents the copy. We know of none which is not worth AT LEAST that much.

YOU are familiar with the popular magazines. You know the artists and you know the writers.

Suppose somebody should come to you today and say: "Old man," [or "Old Girl,"] "the New Magazine will make its appearance tomorrow. I have seen an advance copy. Jack London, Compton Mackenzie, Edward Mott Wooley and Virginia Terhune Van de Water are writing for it. Harrison Fisher, A. B. Wenzell and Howard Chandler Christy are doing the illustrations!"

Suppose your friend should observe further that "the PRICE of the New Magazine will be but TEN CENTS!"

Wouldn't you WANT it? Wouldn't you be sure to HAVE it?

WELL, tomorrow appears the AMERICAN Sunday Monthly Magazine. Jack London, Compton Mackenzie, Edward Mott Wooley and Virginia Terhune Van de Water WRITE for it. Fisher, Wenzell and Christy furnish the ILLUSTRATIONS.

And the PRICE?

There IS no price! One copy of the American Sunday Monthly Magazine goes with EVERY copy of the Boston Sunday American, WITHOUT extra charge! See to it that you get the copy of the American Sunday Monthly Magazine to which you are entitled when you purchase a copy of the Boston Sunday American.

Mr. Harrison Fisher has been drawing for the American Sunday Monthly Magazine, a series of pictures called "The Six Senses."

Tomorrow's illustration is the fifth in the series. Its title is "Feeling." The young bride in the picture is the loveliest we have seen thus far in the year 1915. Mr. Jack London continues his thrilling story of "The Star Rover." Compton Mackenzie tells of "Federigo's Great Play." The title of Mrs. Van de Water's contribution is "If My Country Should Call!" Edward Mott Wooley, of national fame as a business-detection expert, takes for his subject "The Mystery of Disappearing Costs."

We MENTION the American Sunday Monthly Magazine only as an extra added attraction—a headliner, so to speak—which goes with the Boston Sunday American on the first Sunday of the month WITHOUT EXTRA CHARGE.

The Sunday American PROPER will be as interesting as usual, and well worth the price of admission.

Mr. Barrington Wells, who sashayed off to Paterson, New Jersey, two weeks ago, to give us a New Englander's impressions of the Billy Sunday meetings, is home from Syracuse, New York, with his own kind of a yarn about the great trial of Barnes versus Roosevelt. There isn't very much Barnes, or TOO much Roosevelt, to this Barrington Wells report, but there IS a lot of Syracuse, and Onondaga, and, unless we miss our guess, New England will like it.

Mr. Julian Hawthorne, leaving the Boston Braves to themselves for awhile, has been talking physical exercise with Professor Nichols of Harvard.

The subject of the Hawthorne-Nichols conversation was the right sort of exercise for the man who has passed his 35th birthday.

Are you, sir, 35 years old? Read this Hawthorne-Nichols dialogue!

Mr. Hawthorne took with him an expert stenographer. The talk, therefore, is written exactly as it took place. We recommend it to every man in New England who is no longer interested in such entrancing volumes as "How to Conduct a Courtship."

Members and friends of the Ancient and Honorable Artillery Company will be interested in Mr. Moynahan's report of the circus and banquet, a night or two ago.

Mr. Moynahan is the director of the Sunday American's art department and, as you can testify, a gifted young gentleman. When the call came, for somebody to cover the Ancients' show, the City Editor, being short of reporters, asked "Moy" to go down.

"Sure," said "Moy," "how much?"—meaning how much space.

Mere Man—IS he necessary?

This is ONE of the questions suggested by the authenticated report that a large proportion of the members of the Business Women's Club have, without male assistance or assistants, taken to life in the out of doors.

Read, in the Sunday American tomorrow, how the Business Women last Sunday discovered the North Shore and, at this moment, are making plans for an Adamless visit to the South Shore. This story, with its interesting group pictures, is guaranteed to make a dent in the craniums of all those self-satisfied males who are wont to say that THEY (meaning the ladies, Heaven bless them!) "cannot get along without us."

Miss Elizabeth Conway, one of the most interesting of the young women writers for the press of Boston, reports in the Sunday American the result of her investigation of settlement work by the Catholic Church in Boston. How sewing, millinery, dressmaking, office work, household arts and other things are taught by members of the Guild of the Infant Saviour, St. Joseph's Guild of Somerville, the Ladies' Catholic Club, the Daily Industrial School of Dorchester, St. Vincent's Orphan Guild of Roxbury, the Guild of St. Elizabeth and other organizations is told in an interesting page embellished with instructive and beautiful photographs.

As to the War—

Pierre Loti writes of his recent visit to the Queen of the Belgians.

James Louis Garvin, celebrated editor of the Pall Mall Gazette, tells us that Britain is "pledged to the last man."

Guglielmo Ferrero, noted historian, suggests that Constantinople [when the Allies get it] be given to the Belgians.

And so forth and so forth.

The Sunday American continues to devote a four-page section to "Billy" Sunday, his methods and his meetings.

Billy Sunday's Idea of God, Our Heavenly Father; How Billy Sunday Has Enriched Our Language; How I Was Saved; Forceful Points from Mr. Sunday's Sermons; Mrs. Sunday's Sermon to Women Only; The Enduring Results of a Billy Sunday Campaign (by the Mayor of Pittsburgh); Billy Sunday's Three Pals, and What Became of Them—these are SOME of the topics touched upon in the Billy Sunday section of the Sunday American tomorrow.

Mr. Sunday continues to believe in Hell.

One reminder MORE:

To be SURE of your Sunday American, speak EARLY to your regular newsdealer. We are compelled to say again, to our friends, that the reason for their inability to buy a Sunday American LATE on Sunday is that the Sunday American is practically non-returnable. The dealer orders only so many Sunday Americans as his neighborhood WANTS.
